SKETCHED ON THE COLLEGE CAMPUS

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—There's a lot of money waiting for the enterprising soul who compiles a dictionary of college lingo which will make the chatter of Mary and her brother, Joe College, understandable to the world outside the campus.

Imagine the bewilderment of Ma and Pa, down in the country, when Mary comes home for a vacation at Christmas time announcing, "Well, Mum, I sure had a whirl with that gent at the dammatory brawl last night! His dancing was so swell elegant I did tail spins all evening."

With the aid of a 1927 collegiate dictionary Mary's dotting parents will be able to discover that a gent is college man, and a "dammatory brawl" is just an innocent informal little house dance at the dormitory. A "whirl" is a good time and "tail spins" is a figure of speech meaning "thrilled to pieces."

"Swell elegant" is the collegiate way of saying "perfectly lovely."

The New Slang.

Thumbing the pages of the dictionary a bit further you will discover, among others, the following terms and their definitions set forth for the edification of the older generation.

Sudden rush of blood to the head—extreme embarrassment.

Like nothing else—in a class by itself.

My cow!—For goodness sake, or what have you.

I'll bop you one—I shall be forced to strike you.

Suitors—what once were called "boy friends."

Sit by the fireside—a house date.

Oh, Allah—Oh, heavens!

Honey drip or washout—a college man who fails to meet with the approval of the co-eds.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grand-mother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home.

All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied.

Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

NO WONDER KIERNAN BLUSHED AND "HOKE" SMITH LOOKED COY AT MOCK "WEDDING"

Hilarious laughter supplanted the customary tears at the wedding of the joint meeting of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, at Central High School, Tuesday evening.

Members of the two clubs, their wives and invited friends filled the auditorium for the "wedding" of two prominent Xenians. Never was a bride more blushing, a bridegroom more confused and nervous or bridesmaids more coy or more charmingly dressed.

Before the service, Mrs. Charles Adair, as "mistress of ceremonies," announced how arrangements were made to have the "wedding" performed at the joint club meeting and after her short talk, Miss Helen Hurley, at the piano, blended into the nuptial music.

A vocal solo, "I Love You Truly" was sung by Robert Owens, who introduced and who was attired in a handsome creation of black. Music was furnished during the service by Miss Helen Hurley, pianist, and Mrs. Louis Hammerle, violinist.

The procession was led by the officiating minister, J. Thorb Charter hidden behind a dense growth of whiskers. The bridegroom, A. H. Finley, followed, dressed in conventional black.

The youthful ring bearer was impersonated by Emil Eichman, attired in a Lord Fauntleroy suit and tam, with the dainty ring on a velvet pillow. Roses, (attached to elastic) were strewn in the path of the bride by the flower girls, Isadora and Arthur Hyman, who wore frocks of green velvet and black, with flared skirts. The bride's maids were "The Misses" T. H. Zell, who were becomingly attired in white; T. C. Long, who wore a frock of yellow, heavily beaded, with his boyish bob held with a band of gold ribbon; Frank L. Smith, who was unusually attractive and demure in a frock of green and a large picture hat; M. L. Wolf, J. Kennedy, Dr. E. A. Kern, and C. S. Frazier, who wore gowns of different shades and carried arm bouquets.

"The bride," Harry Kiernan, walked alone, dressed in black, with flowing veil and huge arm bouquet. She was followed by George D. Geyer, the heart-broken mother.

Before the "service" was solemnized, Robert Owens sang "No Wonder She's A Blushing Bride." Just as the ring was placed on the "bride's" finger, George Swartz, as the cast-off sweetheart, entered, with difficulty, and the wedding festivities were hastily dispensed with.

Rotarians, Kiwanians and their families were ushered to the guest pews by Karl Bab, Edwin Gallows.

Worcester, Mass.—When a goodly housewife of this town, Mrs. Emma Bombard, found a jeweled band on the street she carried it home and tossed it on a shelf thinking it a cheap trinket. It remained there collecting dust until a friend who knew jewel values saw it. Mrs. Bombard found its owner, Mrs. M. H. Lamprecht of Cleveland, O., through an advertisement in the paper and returned the bracelet worth $2,000 to her. Mrs. Lamprecht had lost it several weeks earlier and police had been watching every pawn shop, expecting that an attempt would be made to sell the forty-five diamonds it contained.

NOT WANTED BY READERS

If "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" then Dayton newspaper publishers must feel complimented.

A group of Dayton merchants have heavily financed a project known as the "Shopping News," which is little more or less than a multi-page handbill, in which a number of advertisers use space.

The "Shopping News" is but a new application of an old advertising formula in a larger dose. It is merely the printing of much advertising on large sheets and distributing them free to the public. The advertising of the supporting merchants is the only printed matter the "Shopping News" contains. It has no other appeal.

Newspapers themselves do not attempt to foist an all-advertising publication upon their patrons. At great expense they gather local, national and world-wide news, they go to considerable outlay for news and feature pictures, they put great emphasis on speed and accuracy in presenting all fresh information which may be termed "news," they carry immense budgets of features and syndicated material, such as special columns of informative and instructive articles, cartoons and other art, that represent the output of highly-paid artists.

With this argument to earn them a place on the reading table of the average home, the newspapers carry the advertising of merchants. However it appears that some of the merchants in Dayton were so thoroughly "sold" on the benefits of advertising, that they started a "Shopping News" to exploit their own merchandise, overlooking the merit of news, features and art that the newspapers themselves consider necessary to learn recognition.

If these merchants consider this advertising so worthwhile that they can afford a huge outlay of funds to support such a medium, they are paying a distinct compliment to the newspapers, for if the "Shopping News" possesses merit to warrant such an outlay, how much more merit must the newspaper bear, when it is sold to its subscribers on the basis of the news-interest it brings its readers?

On the other hand, if the "Shopping News" venture was a satisfactory medium for both advertiser and patron, the newspapers of the country would owe it a great debt of gratitude. For newspapers might then eliminate the expense of the vast news and feature service now carried, and sell all of the space in their newspaper, thereby producing a much greater income to themselves, at a much smaller expense.

This would be an ideal situation for the publisher, and of course the poor reader would suffer in silence, if such a program could be a success—but of course it couldn't. The "Shopping News," like the same sort of a venture here, not so long ago, will fall of its own weight. It is not a sound proposition. There is no place for a free distribution advertising sheet, except it be carried by the advertiser as a dead expense over and above his regular newspaper advertising expenditure.

The Way of the World

YOUTH AND RELIGION

A hopeful pastor in a large city says youth is coming to regard religion as something that can be applied to the whole realm of life, and not to be used in compartments. If young people are reaching this conclusion they are passing beyond the conception of the older generation and they are doing well. The trouble with what grown-ups call religion is that it is made merely a department of life—like grandfather's Saturday night bath.

Religion isn't a departmental phase. It is meant to give current to the stream of life.

BE PRETTY, IF POSSIBLE

A Chicago woman, 61 years old, was shot twice by her husband because she insisted on using rouge and powder in an effort to make herself beautiful. This is pathetic here. The poor woman was all in the right and the husband all wrong. One of the finest things about the human being is the sense of beauty. It is more finely developed in women. Every normal woman wants to be beautiful and most of them have the intelligence to try to be beautiful. They have a right to beauty and it is a duty to themselves to try and attain it. Cosmetics and anything else that helps are reasonable means.

For every man who shoots his wife because she tries to be beautiful, there are ten men who forget their wives because they are not beautiful or don't try to be.

PROSPERITY

Secretary of Labor Davis is right when he says American prosperity rests upon the twin rocks of high wages and great mechanical development. The invention of amazing machinery for high speed production, plus the high wages which create a buying market, have made us a prosperous public. But there is something more important than all this. What are we going to do now to raise the moral and intellectual standard of the newly prosperous? Machinery and high wages do not of themselves build character.

REASON IS NOT EVERYTHING

Perhaps the sharpest criticism of the age is to say that we take too much stock in reason. Things must look reasonable to our finite minds or we are not convinced. Reason is not all. Men and women have other faculties. Hope, faith, imagination, perception, intuition—these are all real and definite qualities. Emotion may be as important, as vital, as essential, as reason. What you FEEL may be as important as what you can prove. The faculty of reasoning is not all. We have limited minds—or at least so far we are limited in our use of them. There are things that defy our reason. But that does not make them untrue.

NEWS COMMENT AND VIEWS

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Add to the many mournful plights of New Yorkers, this pathetic story. A poor family of the east side recently lost two children, when the latter were trapped in a tenement fire. Now the two babies are in the morgue and they will be buried in Potter's field unless the parents can raise enough money for an orthodox burial. And as things appear now, the parents will not be able to secure the required amount. That, it seems to me, is a tragedy which can only be found in a city as large as this one.

The Evening World here has been running a unique feature which lists and describes the many strange jobs which are found here. Consider the young lady who runs the elevator in the Woolworth Tower. She says that here is the most healthful employment in the city and that she would not descend to mundane levels for a great deal more salary than she is now getting. Then there is the man who feeds the fishes—day in and day out—in the aquarium. And another whose duty it is to place signals on the tower of the United States weather bureau, to inform ships in the harbor of what they may expect. Flags are used in the daytime, colored lights at night.

It would be hard to find a more Irish name than that of a Patrick Walsh who is the traffic cop stationed at Fifth Avenue and Forty-second street. His is the distinction of guiding the world's largest flow of traffic. A learned gentleman in the Bronx has exclusive charge of the snakes in the city zoo. Another civil employee makes his home in the Statue of Liberty. He is the lady's protector and caretender. A young man from Brooklyn drives a bus all day long and he never encounters a bit of traffic. For his bus is the only vehicle which runs back and forth under the new tunnel under the Hudson.

The other night I happened to be among the crowd in the theatre district, which was entertained by the spectacle of some half dozen of policemen gone wrong. A truck had been traveling through the crowd, laden with calves, and through some mishap, the calves had escaped. Thereupon our versatile and self-conscious guardians of the peace took to lariats and chased madly up and down the street, flinging their ropes at the frightened animals. As a loyal local citizen, I must admit that as I watched our policemen as good constables.

There is a ragged gamin who haunts the imposing front of Roxy's theatre. He stands back most of the time, unobtrusively in the crowd. But when a taxi driver, he dashes forth to open the door—invariably getting there ahead of the uniformed starter. He also usually gets a tip, which the starter is not allowed to take, on pain of dismissal. And it is not unlikely that that ragged starter is always late in getting there. It is not hard to see why he is late. He has to get a raffle-off from the urchin.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

Our Desire to Be Exclusive

We humans are ever trying to feel that we are doing something important, exclusive. Even a lodge which one may join about as readily as becoming a customer at the nearest barber shop, is certain to have formalities and preliminaries intended to make the joiner feel that he is being honored.

A man likes to be in a club whose requirements are high enough to keep out many applicants while still low enough not to bar him. But after once joining, he is secretly pleased if these requirements are raised—so that a candidate must show one more college degree, better social standing, more highly approved ancestry, or anything else which distinguishes between those who are in and the unfortunates who are out.

Much the same thing happens in a way in churches. More than one minister has told me that the reason his church does not grow is because those in control do not want it to grow.

There are always those who feel "If everybody's going to belong to our church, then what's the point of my belonging to it?"

I wonder if the boy who succeeds in crawling under the tent into a circus isn't secretly pleased when his companions try to follow him.

The men who contribute most heavily to the upkeep of a church, and who, though in the minority, are this able to boss things, are likely to be men whose capacity for wickedness is somewhat circumscribed. To begin with, they may be too old to have retained much interest in devilry, and their position in the community as prominent citizens is such that they would not think it prudent to be conspicuously sinful, even if they had the ambition.

Many a man thinks he is forsaking sin because sin is wisely forsaking him.

Such men are not much in sympathy with impiety in others. They are opposed to letting their church be a social center, unwilling to sanction dancing and card playing by their younger members.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON
BRAINS

It seems as though every girl and boy that one meets nowadays is thinking about getting married. Some of them are quite serious about it, and others are rather facetious.

Said one yesterday in my hearing, "I am going to add one more marriage to the divorce chances next month."

"Why do you think you run any chance of being divorced?" he was asked.

"Because," he answered quickly, "I am going to marry a girl with brains, and that is always taking a long chance."

I looked at the youth in mute surprise. Before I could recover my astonishment he further explained rather shamefacedly, "You see she is very pretty and she tells me that she can cook just as well as an ugly girl."

Is there a world, young or old, with a modicum of gray matter behind her more or less lustrous eyes, who has not heard time and again that a brainy woman cannot be domestic?

Is there anything about brains that will keep her from having energy, courage, self-reliance, absolute honesty, common sense and understanding? Does it not take brains to understand these attributes?

Does it not take brains to possess the possession of charity, purity of thought and act, and above all, love of home?

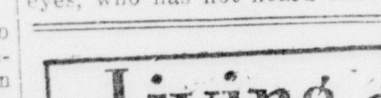

Does it not take as much brains to make a home out of a house as it does to provide the home?

If I were a man I would much prefer brains to beauty; grace of mind to grace of body.

The brainiest girl is one who has the broadest toleration and the greatest forbearance, two of the most necessary qualities in a successful married life.

True, a brainy woman does not always accept a man at his own valuation, but if her husband is worthy of her faith and trust, the bigger her brain the more completely will she turn her attention to making her marriage successful, as she knows that only there her happiness lies.

Memo: The girl without brains cannot always appreciate her husband, but the girl with them knows that there is nothing that can take the place of home and children in a woman's life.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Forlorn Figures"

The most forlorn figures in the world are not the ones who have love troubles, but the ones that don't. Those who do not attract friends or lovers suffer the real tragedy of life.

A lonely girl writes:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18 years old and am a senior in high school. Regarding the fact that I am considered good looking I am without friends and very lonesome. When school is over each day, the students group together and go down the street, but as I have no one to go with, all I can do is hasten home. I just can't make friends, as I always feel self-conscious, even in school."

"Now, Mrs. Lee, after knowing my feelings, I feel certain that you will tell me through the column what I must do to overcome them."

A LONESOME BLOND.

Forget yourself and be interested in others. It sounds easy, doesn't it, but I know very well it is not. But it can be done, my dear, and you are going to do it.

Every time "you" loom up in your mind firmly crowd it out with thoughts of interesting things and people. Try to think that other people are often shy and ill at ease, too, and by talking to them you can put them at their ease. Read and study hard, not only books, but people. Keep your eyes, no matter how discouraged you get, and in time you'll win. And you can make this trouble of yours a bond to draw people to you.

Here's another:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I was very disappointed to find that my letter was not published in the column. I am a girl of 26 years and it seems that I am left alone. I never did work. I stay home and help mother and that is the reason I can never get acquainted with friends. I am allowed to go places, but must be home in a decent hour. Nowadays life is so fast that people are not old-fashioned. I admit I am old-fashioned because the girls and fellows who know me think I am too slow. I know how to hold a conversation if I only had a chance to get acquainted with a nice girl around my age who is as lonesome for a friend as I am."

There are a good many young people who are "old-fashioned" like you, so you ought not to be lonesome. Did you ever hear of the slow club started by a boy and a girl in Philadelphia? Or not start one of your own? Join some of the classes at the Y. W. C. A.? One usually meets nice girls at things of that kind.

"Sad Eyes" has written me another letter and she still wants a home. But she has not told me her real name. Do you think a letter addressed, "Sad Eyes, town of so and so, state of Ohio" will reach you? "Sad Eyes" Does the postmaster of your town know you by that name?

EXCELLENT SUGGESTION

"You lead the orchestra, sir," asked the tired business man in the cabaret.

"I do," replied Professor Jaz-zolo, proudly.

"Then would you mind leading them out for a bit of air?"

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Cold sliced meat or meat loaf for the guest dinner saves a lot of last minute work for the woman who does her own cooking. Either may be prepared the day before. As both the hostess and the guest enjoy the occasion more when the former is not tired out, it is well to consider such a dish when making out your menu. A hot soup as a first course is good to serve when cold meat is used and the potatoes should be scalloped, creamed or otherwise prepared so as not to need gravy.

Cream of Tomato Soup
Veal Loaf
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Cranberry Jelly
Pumpkin Pie
Pumpkin Pie
Cheese

Today's Recipes.

Veal Loaf—Select two and one-half pounds of lean veal. An inexpensive cut if it has bone will serve the purpose. Cook this until the meat falls off the bone. Pour the meat juice into a cup. Cut the meat into small pieces. Arrange slices of a boiled egg in the bottom of a loaf dish, then a layer of meat, followed by a layer of thinly sliced sweet pickles, then another layer of canned peas. Repeat until the dish is filled (use six sweet pickles and about one and one-half cups of canned peas from which the liquor has been drained). Then over all pour the meat juice, which will fill the loaf. Let stand over night and turn out on platter garnished with lettuce.

Endive and Orange Salad—Wash and break in small pieces two heads of white endive or chicory; arrange on serving plates; cover with sections of oranges and pour over all a sharp lemon French dressing.

Suet Pudding.
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Dainty Tested Recipe.)

One cup chopped suet, one cup molasses, or one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one cup raisins, two teaspoons baking powder, two cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon soda. Steam two hours, serve with liquid sauce.

QUICK THINKING

On the blackboard a boy with a certain amount of artistic genius had drawn a life-like caricature of a certain master.

Shortly after, to his horror, that master entered the room. Presently the portrait on the blackboard caught and held his attention. He looked at it in anger for a moment or two, and then faced the class.

"Who is responsible for this atrocity?" he asked in a voice of thunder.

The artist got slowly to his feet and coughed nervously.

"I strongly suspect his parents," he observed, and sat down.

Cruelty to Horses

They tell of a dear old lady who could not be prevailed upon by her son, a prominent engineer, to accompany him to a polo match. She had a vague idea, it seems, that the horses were frequently killed. Her son laughingly assured her that she must be thinking of bull fights and that the only weapon used in polo was a mallet. "It is," he told her "very much like croquet." The dear old lady was still adamant. "I couldn't bear," she explained, "to see the poor horses trip on the wickets."

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—For a man who was barred, as a "red," out of two congresses to which he'd been duly elected, who spent a couple of years of his life with a 20-year penitentiary sentence hanging over his head, and was chosen, the other day, to the Socialist party leadership once held by the late Eugene V. Debs—who actually served a stretch in "stir"—Victor L. Berger's a surprising popular representative in Washington.

It ISN'T so surprising, at that, when you understand why; but it SEEMS so, at first thought.

The idea's this:

We have in congress a smallish, but troublesome group, largely of Representatives, but to some extent of Democrats, who call themselves "radicals," or "progressives," or what-not.

They give the "regulars" of both parties an acute, three-cornered pain, because they won't stay "in line."

To Victor Berger they give, equally, a violent, triangular pain, because, calling themselves "radicals," which he IS, he considers them no such thing.

The congressional conservatives, Republican and Democratic, and Victor Berger, Socialist, have this in common:

The "progressive" self-styled, made 'em both sick.

The conservatives—many—and Victor Berger—one—get together on this issue in the most fraternal way.

When the "progressives" have the conservatives sit back and sneer—but everybody knows they'RE conservatives. Congressman Berger sits back, and, as a member of the "progressives," so long, of course, as Berger remains in a minority of ONE, or thereabouts.

When the conservatives pan the "progressives," "Go to it," is Congressman Berger's attitude. "They're no friends of mine," "Berger knows," comment all true-blue "reds" and the "progressives" "punch is weakened 75 percent."

When Berger has something to say, "Fair play" chortle the conservatives. "Give him all the time he wants."

All of which is water over Congressman V. Berger's wheel.

Not for a minute is it to be supposed that he's playing the conservative's game.

In congress he's a party of one.

He wishes he were stronger. "If only there were 35 of me!" he says. There are 435 members of the house of representatives.

"One man can't talk enough," he explains. They'll let him talk all he likes. "Yes," he answers, "but that's because I don't. If I said all I have to say I'd be as tiresome as—"

There! Let's draw a veil. Let's not tell whom he'd be as tiresome as.

Representative Berger makes three or four speeches in the course of a session of congress—little gems, of 10 or 15 minutes each.

He could make plenty more, but if he fell for that, they wouldn't be so good. He estimates 'em to a tick, and the galleries are full when it's announced he's going to make one.

Don't imagine it's a crowd of long-haired anarchists he draws.

His audience is bald-headed, like Nicholas Longworth and John Hays Hammond and Justice Taft—who combs his locks over his bare spot—who like good literary stuff.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Exercise to Strengthen and Beautify Your Feet

The muscles which control your feet extend all the way up your leg through the thighs. The most powerful muscles in your whole body are located in your thighs. So when you work to strengthen your feet, you must think of them only as a continuation of the entire leg.

You can greatly increase your ability to stand and walk comfortably and gracefully by giving the right exercise to your legs and feet. And you can also do a great deal toward preventing such foot ills as fallen arches, chilblains, etc. Chilblains, by the way, are due to lack of circulation, and you can guard against them by keeping the blood stream active, coursing through your legs and feet. Walking (if you do it right), swimming and dancing, are all excellent for the feet. Then there are local exercises for strength and beauty which I am going to describe to you.

Running is one of the best things there is for developing the feet, but a grown woman, especially if she lives in a city, has small opportunity to engage in that particular sport. Here is a running exercise you can do at home: Place your hands on your hips and run in place. This is known as "running on a dime."

Increase the speed faster and faster. Do this three minutes daily.

Stand with your back against a chair or some other support. Bend one knee, bringing it to a right angle, with the toe pointing downward, then rotate your lower leg from the knee joint, keeping the toe pointed downward. It is also excellent to rotate each foot at the inner side out. Then take each toe and rotate it with your fingers, being careful not to strain it. Then curl your toes up and down. This relieves them after the cramping of shoes.

An excellent exercise to improve your gracefulness in walking is the leg swinging. Swing your leg back as far as it will go without bending the knee, and then forward. It is well to begin doing this exercise resting your hand against some support. And if you stand on a book or foot stool, it gives the feet a better chance to swing free from the floor.

If you are subject to aches in the balls of your feet, or if you have trouble with fallen arches, it is good to try picking up marbles exercises which develop the muscles of your feet. This strengthens the traverse arch that crosses your foot just behind the toes.

I have told you a number of exercises which will do a great deal to cultivate, strengthen and thus beautify the feet, legs and ankles. The modern mode of short skirts has thrown feet and legs so into the foreground that women are becoming much more interested in developing their beauty, and if it ever becomes the fashion to go barefoot, I predict there will be vast numbers of women going into seclusion for foot and leg culture. As it is, we are catching up, but I am sure that if women had had warning that dresses were to be so very short and remain that a much better, we would have a much better-looking parade of women peering from behind their skirts.

Since shoes play such a tremendous large part in foot beauty, I am going to devote my next talk to "How to Choose Your Footwear."

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

Safe in Mother's Wing

"Great Scott! What a dizzy ride!" exclaimed Peter, as Mrs. Flittermouse came to a stop by a clover clump, its fragrant blossoms gleaming white in the light of the moon. "You came within an ace of catching your wing in the prickly pear, Mrs. Flittermouse, or, at least, I thought you did, but I guess you knew what you were doing, all right. For here we are in the meadow, the trees and gloom all behind us. And it is so much more pleasant than the woods, don't you think so?"

"Oh, I don't know. I like the deep woods pretty well myself, but, then, of course, I am not afraid of my own shadow," sniffed Mrs. Flittermouse, a bit scornfully.

The boy was about to make some reply when he heard a strange sound, half squeak, half sob. Yet there wasn't a creature abroad, but himself and Mrs. Flittermouse, as far as he could see.

"Who was that?" whispered he. Instead of answering, Mrs. Flittermouse spread her wings and flew over the clover clump, alighting on a large flat stone on the farther side. But the weak little squeaking went on, as plain to be heard as before. Whoever was making the noise must have followed the Bat in her flight. Peter was more puzzled than before.

"Listen! Don't you hear something crying. Mrs. Flittermouse? Who is it, do you know?" for the second time the boy leaned over the edge of the stone.

"Get down off my back," demanded Mrs. Flittermouse, sharply, and at this unexpected reply to his question Peter was so surprised that he tumbled to the ground in a hurry.

"W-w-w-what's the matter?" stammered he. Then something happened Peter never would have believed possible if he had not seen it with his own eyes.

Mrs. Flittermouse slowly unfolded her wings, and bent towards the boy.

"Look!" whispered she. "But, sh! Don't make a noise. He is dropping off to sleep again."

There, cuddled in a fold of Mrs. Flittermouse's wing, was a tiny baby Bat, not much bigger than a bean, and with a body as bare as a birdling's.

Yellow Jackets Crush Antioch Second Time

CEDARVILLE FIRST STRING SQUAD RUNS UP DECISIVE SCORE

Running And Passing Attack Too Much For Antioch

Exhibiting a powerful comeback in the second half, the Cedarville College "Yellow Jackets" meted out a crushing 40 to 6 defeat to the Antioch College Division B football eleven in the latter's initial game on the Cedarville gridiron Tuesday afternoon.

Cedarville has now registered two victories this season and both have been at the expense of Antioch. Antioch's Division A team was smothered by Coach Borst's eleven 35 to 0 September 27.

It marked the first time in the history of Cedarville that the college has defeated Antioch twice in one year, having rolled up seventy-eight points to Antioch's six.

The Yellow Springs school was off to a flying start in Tuesday's encounter, scoring the first touchdown of the contest in the opening quarter as a result of a march down the field to the ten-yard line, from where Halfback Seaman, with perfect interference, circled end for a score. The goal kick was missed.

With the exception of the first few minutes of the game, Antioch was clearly outplayed, however, Cedarville registering twenty-three first downs to two for Antioch.

It was not until the last few minutes of play in the first half that Cedarville registered its first touchdown to tie the score. The marker came as a result of a succession of forward passes. Adair completed a pass to Rutan and another forward, Nagley to Freeder, placed the ball on the ten-yard line. Rutan raced across for a score and also received a perfect pass from Adair for the extra point, putting his team into the lead by one point as the half ended.

In the second half there was a totally different story to tell. Antioch appeared to have exhausted its strength in the first half and the Yellow-Jackets counted two touchdowns in the third quarter and three more in the last period, mixing up slashing line plays and passes nicely.

Rutan went across for Cedarville's first score in the second half, but a pass was incomplete for the extra point. A few minutes later Fisher, right end, caught a pass from Captain Nagley and raced forty yards for a touchdown. Fisher also contributed the extra point, arching a perfect dropkick over the cross bar.

As the fourth quarter opened, Adair heaved a pass to Freeder, who was thrown on Antioch's eight. Freeder plunged to the two-yard mark and Captain Nagley, who has not figured in the scoring this season, was given the honor of going across with the counter. Fisher kicked goal.

After receiving the next kickoff, Adair, on the first play, hurled a pass to Little, who made a spectacular fifty-five-yard run for a touchdown. Pass for extra point was intercepted. The final score came with Cedarville's second string players in the game. Rutan, Freeder and Townsley alternated in carrying the ball and a march down the field ended with Rutan plunging across for the score. Freeder place-kicked goal.

Cedarville's regular team played only nineteen minutes of the game but piled up thirty-three points while in the pastime.

Brown, Ellies and Horney played outstanding games on the line for the Yellow-Jackets while Rutan's line plunging was a feature. Bostwick and Seaman starred for Coach Kennedy's eleven.

Cedarville has won two and lost five games this season while one resulted in a tie score. However, Cedarville has scored a total of 140 points to opponents' ninety-five, has scored at least one touchdown in every contest and has lost four games by one touchdown and a fifth by one point.

Cedarville will wind up its schedule Friday afternoon, meeting Ball's Teachers' College at Muncie, Ind. A scheduled game with Manchester College, at Manchester, Ind., the following day has been cancelled.

Adair, sensational half-back sustained a serious injury to his nose in the Antioch tussle and it is doubtful whether he will be able to participate in the final game Friday. Lineups and summary:

CENTRAL GRIDDERS PRIMED FOR WILMINGTON GAME THURSDAY

Central High gridgers are being primed for the annual football game with Wilmington High Thursday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field, which will be the eighteenth meeting of the two schools on the gridiron since 1911. The contest will start at 3 o'clock. The Blue and White squad is brushing up on forward passes and if line plays are unavailing against the Quaker team the contest may develop into a forward passing affair. Coach Kolb is also working to perfect a passing defense as this favorite method of attack proved a boomerang in the Withrow tussle last week.

The squad is in fine physical shape for the Wilmington struggle and a victory is anticipated.

Xenia has won two games and lost two while two others were no decision affairs this season, a victory Thursday would give the locals an edge in the matter of wins and losses this season.

Xenia won the 1926 game with Wilmington by the close score of 7 to 0.

MORTON FLASHING ON GRIDIRON

BOB MORTON

Performance of Captain Robert Morton, halfback, has been an outstanding feature of Central High School's exploits on the gridiron this season. Particularly in the Withrow game last week, Morton never displayed his football talent to better advantage.

In this game the Blue and White leader played the best game of his scholastic career, returning punts for an average of twenty yards and giving the Tiger team constant trouble with his broken field running. He scored both Xenia touchdowns.

Morton combines all the assets a player can possess. He can run, end, plunge the line, pass the ball, receive passes, and is the team's regular kicker. Much of Xenia's gridiron success the last two years is attributed to this lad, one of the most popular football captains the school has ever had.

HOME ELEVEN WILL TANGLE WITH EAST

East High School and the O. S. and S. O. Home football elevens, both undefeated this season, will lock horns for the second time Friday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. The contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Both schools have an impressive gridiron record this season. The Home and East High met earlier in the season but the question of superiority is still doubtful as the game ended in a tie, 19 to 19.

MOTHER OF ERNEST BRADFORD CALLED

Mrs. Rebecca Bradford, 88, mother of Ernest Bradford, Trebels, died at her home in Columbus, early Wednesday morning. Death was caused by infirmities of age.

Mr. Bradford left for Columbus Wednesday morning on receipt of word of his mother's death. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 3:30 at her home.

HALITOSIS? KILL IT!

Seven times in ten, Halitosis is due to a sour, gassy stomach, caused by intestinal stasis, or "Constipation." People with halitosis (unpleasant breath) are shunned, avoided, because they are like a "plague"—friends just can't endure being near such a person. Old and young, rich and poor, none escape if fermented food remains in the body more than 24 hours. Even if the bowels move daily, there is often a remnant of food decaying matter, that can only be removed with a thorough cleansing, such as Blackburn's Cathartic Pills produce. This sweet little pill is "Better than Castor Oil."

Its action is pleasant and prompt. Stomach, liver, spleen and intestines, all are benefited. The effect is so different from ordinary laxatives, salts, calomel, etc. A smooth, abundant action from the very first dose, soon rids you of all the disagreeable symptoms.

Let the whole family learn the value of Blackburn's Cathartic Pills, 45 pills, 30 cts. at drug stores.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

The cigarette preferred by experienced smokers

In the remarkable growing popularity of the cigarette, many brands have bid for favor, but Camel continues to lead by billions.

Quality put it there—quality keeps it there.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

Farm Notes

FARMER MUST WALK

Ohio farmers walk an average of ninety-nine miles a month in feeding and caring for their livestock in the winter months. On some farms those who care for the livestock walk as far as 170 miles a month; on others as little as thirty-three miles.

So pedometers worn by Putnam County farmers, and recorded with the rural economics department at the Ohio State University, now reveal. The ninety-nine miles a month meant an average of 3.3 miles daily; the 170 miles of walking a month, an average of 5.6 miles daily.

"On two farms with practically the same kind and number of livestock," reports John F. Dowler of the rural economics department, "there was a difference of eighty-six miles monthly in the steps taken to do the livestock chores."

"Each farm had three horses, three cows, five or six brood sows and their pigs. To care for this amount of livestock it required 135 miles of walking a month on one farm, or an average of about four and a half miles a day. On the other farm it took only forty-nine miles of walking a month, or 1.6 miles daily."

"The saving of steps on the latter farm and on others with similar records," Mr. Dowler points out, "was made possible by the convenient location of the buildings, with interiors efficiently arranged for livestock care. Cribbs of corn and feed bins were handy. Self-feeders and drinking fountains were used for growing pigs. Tanks of water for other livestock were kept filled by wind mills or gasoline engines."

"On the three farms requiring the greatest amount of walking," Mr. Dowler concludes, "the water pull was depended upon to supply water to the hogs. Self-feeders were seldom used. Corn was carried and fed to the livestock."

WAYS TO KEEP APPLES

Five rules for keeping that "early fall complexion" on apples throughout the winter are suggested by a Wisconsin horticulturist in a statement received by the agricultural publications office at the Ohio State University.

To keep winter apples plump and juicy horticulturist C. L. Kuehner recommends:

First, properly ripened fruit that is to be kept during the winter should be hand picked. Apples should not be over mature when picked as they keep better if they are firm but still mature.

Second, handle the fruit with care, as bruises and punctures cause decay. Only sound apples, free from disease, should be selected.

Third, apples should not be stored in bins. Bushel baskets and the common apple box are more satisfactory for storage than the larger containers.

Fourth, as soon as the fruit has been picked and placed in baskets, it should be set where it will be shaded and yet protected from the sun. The north side of a building is often used. Apples may remain out-doors until time of hard frosts, at which time they should be removed to the cellar for winter storage.

Fifth, the cellar should be cool, kept at near thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit as possible. It should also be airy and ventilated at night. A false slatted floor should be laid so that air may circulate underneath the apples. If the cellar has a concrete floor, it should be sprinkled frequently so that the apples do not shrivel.

FUNCTION OF COLLEGE

By Dr. Ernest Hatch Wilkins, President of Oberlin College
Ernest Hatch Wilkins was born at Newton Center, Mass., September 14, 1880. He began his career as an instructor of romance languages at Amherst college in 1900, going from there to Harvard university in 1906. In 1912 he went to the University of Chicago as professor in the college of literature, and the Arts, becoming dean of the school in 1916. Dr. Wilkins was inaugurated president of Oberlin college, Oberlin, O., in 1927. During the World War he served as associate executive secretary of the War Personnel board.

The college exists because society desires that youth be taught. Teaching, then, is the thing primarily expected of the college. Teaching is, moreover, precisely what the college itself most desires to do, most delights in doing, is best qualified to do, and does best.

The modern college has, to be sure, an extraordinary variety of functions; but teaching is by far the most important that all the others taken together cannot rival in significance. Many of the other functions are indeed by-products of the teaching. Teaching is, in the last analysis, the function of the college.

The quality of the teaching is the measure of the success of the college. If the teaching is good, the college is a good college, even though its plant be inadequate and its athletic stars be dim. If the teaching is poor, the college is a poor college, even though it have a Freshman Week and a psychiatrist. If the teaching is good, the college justifies its existence and deserves encouragement. If the teaching is and remains poor, the college deserves extinction.

Teaching is done by teachers. The essential life of the college is in its faculty as such is most alive. The central concern of all those interested in the vitality of the college—the faculty itself, the administrative officers, the trustees, the alumni, the students, and the whole community, immediate or remote, wherein the light of the college shines—should be such as to facilitate good teaching; and that they should actually teach to the best of their ability.

ENGLAND AIDS AERO GAME; SUBSIDIZES FOUR FLYING CLUBS

LONDON, Nov. 2.—To increase public interest in flying and advance private ownership of aeroplanes, the British government has decided to grant $10,000 a year to four different aeroplane clubs in England.

The light aeroplane movement is rapidly gaining popularity among the social elect of Britain, and young women members than men. It started about two years ago and when the government noticed how interested the public became in it, special arrangements were made to enable private ownership without a large output of money.

Thus the aeroplane club came into existence. Not only can a member of this club use it as a hangar for a privately owned machine but it is mainly for the use of co-operative ownership. Here any one can pay the club so much money, in cash or on the installment plan, and be allowed the use of the plane at certain times. When enough persons have joined in the ownership of this one plane to pay its cost, then it passes out of the government's hands and belongs solely to the share-holders who arrange with themselves the use of it.

Since the movement started six clubs have sprung up with very successful results in the training of pilots and popularizing of flying generally. A membership of 1,500 is at present divided among these six clubs.

MUST PROVE DEATH OF ROME FLYER TO SATISFY COURT

MRS. DOROTHY HUGHES PAYNE; INSET, PHIL PAYNE; BE-LOW, THE ILL-FATED "OLD GLORY."

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch

The Xenia Gazette

JERSEY CITY, N. J. Nov. 2.—

Out of the gray wastes of the Atlantic ocean, which hide the fate of the transatlantic plane, Old Glory, has come a person for New Jersey courts to decide.

When Phil Payne, New York editor and passenger on the flight, made his will and kissed his wife goodbye, he thought he had provided amply for her in case of disaster.

But Payne did not reckon with the law of New Jersey where his will has been filed for probate, and where the question of the legality of his death must come up.

The world in general and kindred men of Payne believe he is dead. But the law of New Jersey must know for a certainty.

And a fortune of $100,000 may be tied up as a result.

New Jersey law provides that where a physician's certificate of death is not submitted, a person must be absent from his home at least seven years and all reasonable efforts to find him exhausted before a legal presumption of death may be argued.

Besides Payne's widow, Dorothy Hughes Payne, a former bathing beauty, his heirs include his father, other kinsmen and business associates.

But they may all have to wait seven years for their inheritance unless a way out can be found when the question of Payne's death comes up, as it soon will in Orphan's Court here.

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

BIG JOBS AHEAD

The boys and girls who are now in high school and college are going to find some big jobs awaiting them when they get out of school.

The Theater

The movie actress is not only among the best dressed women—but the oftenest dressed. That is the verdict in New York, the center of style and clothes of America. Movie stars and movie companies are among the very best and biggest of Fifth Avenue's customers.

The movie companies are even better customers than the movie stars; because film producers necessarily must have enormous wardrobes on the lot, fit for the needs of any film. One movie company possesses no fewer than 22,000 articles of clothing of which 10,000 are dressed. Many of these have been worn by leading women boots and 100 bedroom slippers. Ballroom extras may wear these later on. Hats? There are 2,539 of them. And, believe it or not, 1,549 undershirts. Also 760 pieces of underwear and 364 negligees. Night gowns, 250. For bathing girls 396 swimming suits are kept on hand. Among sport costumes are 128 riding habits. Those kitchen scenes demand the presence of 600 aprons. Other items are 1,420 waists, 675 capes, and coats, 552 suits, 370 shirts, 215 sweaters, 165 hawls, and scarfs and fur pieces.

John Luther Long, 66, author of "Madame Butterfly" and other stories and plays, died at a hospital in Clifton Springs, N. Y., Monday. He wrote the story of "Madame Butterfly" on which Puccini's famous opera was based. Among his other efforts were "The Darling of the Gods," "Adra," written for Mrs. Leslie Carter, "Kassa" and "Dolce," and numerous others.

Irene Rich, who for a while abandoned the role of the forsaken wife for most sophisticated parts, is returning to the old type in her next picture, "Beware of Married Men."

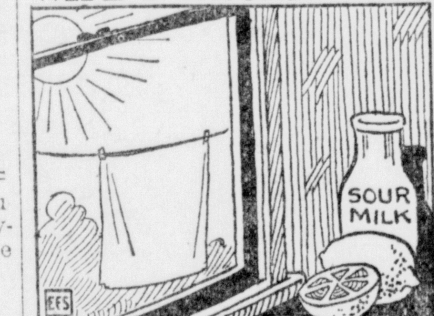

Florence Mills, 32, an internationally known colored entertainer, died at the John Disease Hospital, New York, Tuesday, after an operation for appendicitis. She returned recently from triumphs in London and Paris and was sent to the hospital a few days later. Miss Mills was recognized by critics as the leading race actress and was said to be a favorite performer of the Prince of Wales.

This, in case you are at all interested in the subject, depicts Gilbert Roland's latest idea in love-making. It will be noticed that he first (probably by soft words) develops a soulful mood on the part of his lady fair—Mary Astor—then closes his eyes and kisses her on the corner of her chin. They are starred in "Rose of the Golden West."

and are now kept for possible future use by minor characters. Never does a leading woman wear the same dress twice.

The most striking of these dresses are filed away under the names of the stars who wore them. Row by row in great glass cabinets can be found the costumes of Poll Negri, Bebe Daniels, Florence Vidor and the remainder. The company also keeps 2,100 pairs of shoes always on hand. And also 125 pairs of

ESCAPED PRISONER CAPTURED TUESDAY BY OSBORN MARSHAL

Clarence Blair, 21, prisoner in the County Jail, who walked away from the institution October 11 while serving as a trustee, is under arrest at Osborn, according to Sheriff Osmer Tate.

Deputy Sheriff George Sugden was assigned to return Blair to Xenia Wednesday and Probate Judge S. C. Wright will determine whether additional punishment will be meted out to the man. Blair was captured by Marshal William A. Schneider, Osborn.

Arrested August 6, Blair was admitted to the County Jail several days later after being convicted in Probate Court on charges of operating an auto while intoxicated and intoxication.

He was committed in default of a fine of $25 and costs for the first offense and $50 fine and costs on the drunk charge.

Blair served two months and had one more month to serve when he escaped. He was serving as a trustee outside the jail when he walked away.

Blair came to Greene County from Ironton, O., and was employed at the Southwestern Portland Cement Co. plant at Osborn at the time of his arrest.

HUNGARIAN GIRL HOPES TO BE DIPLOMAT

AGATHA FEDAK. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2—Agatha Fedak lived in Budapest. She often dreamed of visiting America where they were producing Ferenc Molnar's plays, "Lilium" and "The Play's the Thing."

For Agatha's aunt, Sari Fedak, is the great Hungarian actress whom Molnar married and for whom he writes his star roles.

Agatha determined that she must visit the United States. How to get there?

She was a student of languages (she speaks six fluently) at the state university of Budapest. Her professors told her not to study French, English or Italian in a land as young as America. They felt certain that American colleges stood almost exclusively for athletics.

Awarded Scholarship.

"And so," Agatha Fedak, who is a young, strong, blonde, blue-eyed Hungarian girl, explained, "I decided to apply for a scholarship in physical education. I got it through the International Student Exchange and here I am at Temple University which they picked for me."

"Now that I have been in your country several weeks, I like it. Back in Hungary, where I have a title, people could never understand my love of sports. I was one of the very few girls in Budapest who could ski and skate and play tennis and swim."

Many things here surprise Miss Fedak. She is astonished at the youth of the college professors. In Hungary they are all old, she says. She can not get accustomed to seeing women doing everything every where.

"Men First" in Hungary.

"At home, especially since the war, only a few women can get into our colleges. Our universities are so overcrowded. We think the men should be allowed to go first. We have no women professors in Hungary. There is only one woman an architect and one woman lawyer in all of Hungary."

"The vote? We have it only after we are thirty years old, or have three children, or are very influential—have what you call push, or pull, I think."

It is Agatha Fedak's ambition, after staying in the United States a year or two, to go to Rome and then to Geneva. She wants to devote her time to some international organization, like the League of Nations or the International Bureau de Travail.

Money Love

By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled child of the CRUIS LEXINGTONS who have always lived far beyond their means. Lily has been reared to be beautifully useless, and her highest ambition is realized when she becomes engaged to STALEY DRUMMOND, a wealthy bachelor much older than herself.

On the morning after he asks her to marry him he telephones to say he is coming to see her that afternoon, and Lily's mother asks him to stay for dinner. Lily begins to look ahead and to wonder what life would be like if she had to eat dinner with Staley Drummond all the rest of her life. She likes him, and the thought of his money entrances her, but she wonders if she ought not to be more deeply in love with him than she is, if she is going to marry him. She starts out in the rain to see her friend, SUE CAIN, to ask her to be maid-of-honor at her wedding in June.

On the way to the restaurant where Sue is lunching she sees a very good-looking man watching her in the street. She feels herself oddly attracted by him before she notices that he wears a uniform and is standing beside his taxicab. Moved by a sudden impulse she gets into the cab and tells him to drive her back home. She forgets all about Sue Cain until she is in the cab.

The car stops on the way out to her father's house, and the driver cheerfully gets out in the rain to see what is wrong with his engine. Lily tells him how much she likes to drive, and starts to tell her about some new automobile part he is inventing and then stops as if he thinks he is talking too much and the drive ends in silence. As Lily gets out of the cab she takes the card with his name "Pat France" and his photograph upon it, and slips it into her purse. That night, after dinner, when Staley and she are sitting before the fire and she is trying to convince herself that she loves him, her mother comes to the door and says that a taxi-driver is waiting to see her about something.

(NOW GO IN WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER III.

LILY'S big eyes grew bigger still with amazement.

"A taxi-driver to see me?" she said quickly. "A taxi-driver?"

She knew, of course, that it must be Pat France. But why on earth had he come here to her father's house? What did he want to see her for?—Insisting upon seeing her, too?

"The check of him" she said to herself, and then another thought came tumbling into her mind. He had come for that card that she had taken from his cab that afternoon! The card with his name and his picture on it—the card that was lying in the bottom of her handbag upstairs this very minute!

With a nervous little laugh she got up from the flowered-chintz couch where she and Staley were sitting, and he got up, too. He looked at her with a twinkle of amusement in his eyes.

"What have you done? Forgotten to pay a cab fare, Lily?" he asked good-humoredly.

And then Lily did a foolish and senseless thing. She said the first thing that came to her mind, and it was a white lie. A lie that was going to breed a great deal of trouble before it was forgotten.

"Yes," she said, almost without thinking. If she thought about it at all, it simply seemed the easiest thing to say—the easiest explanation of this unexpected visit from a taxicab driver.

She walked slowly out of the room and into the big hall of the house that was more like a friendly room than just an entrance hall, with its coal-fire in the grate and its big bowl of daffodils on the center table.

Just inside the door stood Pat France. He had his cap in his hand and under the artificial light his blue eyes looked even bluer than they had in the afternoon.

Lily was struck with his exceedingly good looks again as she walked straight up to him and said "What do you want?" in the coolest tones imaginable.

"My identification card," he told her quietly. "You took it out of my cab this afternoon, and I'd like it."

His eyes swerved from her face as he spoke, and turning Lily saw that Staley had come up behind her and was standing at her elbow, with his hands in his pockets and his lips pursed up under his little mustache.

"Please let me take care of this, Staley," she begged him, wondering if he had heard what Pat France had said. "Please do go back into the other room with Mother. This is my affair—really."

But Staley was stubborn. All his life he had got the things that he wanted by sticking to his point and refusing to budge. He refused to budge now.

He looked at the blue-eyed cab driver who topped him by a good three inches, and was exceptionally good-looking to boot. Then he looked at the girl who had promised to marry him just the night before. She had gone as white as the pale orchids he had brought her that afternoon and her fingers picked nervously at a frill on her black dress. There seemed to be more to this situation than just an unpaid taxi bill, as Staley saw it.

"How much do you owe this fellow, Lily?" he asked.

For a second Lily hesitated, not knowing what to say. And in that second she was lost. For Pat France answered the question.

OH, MY KIDNEYS!

There is probably no falsity harder to pry out of the minds of the majority of laymen than the idea that pain in the back means kidney disease. The numerous advertisements of patent medicines for kidney disease, reaching the practically every one who may have a pain in the back at times, have capitalized this fact by associating back pain with the kidneys. Oh, My Kidneys! pictures of men, women and children have literally poured in millions of shekels into their pockets.

But the fact that the unscrupulous takers get rich over the representations is the least to be concerned about. The thing to be concerned about is that many who did have kidney disease, and might have recovered under intelligent care, have actually died from their misplaced faith in the nostrums, and others who didn't have kidney disease might have contracted a kidney irritation from the drugs. Fortunately, the number of those who believe everything they read in advertisements is lessening markedly.

The technical name for the inflammation of the kidneys is Nephritis. (The termination itis means inflammation.) It is most often called Bright's disease, to honor a Dr. Bright of London, who, about 100 years ago was the first to describe the condition.

The work of the kidneys consists of filtering all of the blood and eliminating the larger share of the soluble waste products (mostly the protein wastes) in this way they help to maintain the normal composition of the blood and body fluids. If one kidney has to be removed for any reason, the remaining one nobly comes to the rescue by enlarging and doing double work.

The kidney cells are most often acutely injured by bacterial poisons and the bacteria themselves. These often get into the blood from infected spots anywhere in the body (such as infected tonsils, teeth, and nasal sinuses) and from the acute infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, pneumonia, diphtheria, etc.

The kidneys can also be injured by poisons such as lead and arsenic.

CUPID LED DIVORCE COURTS IN OCTOBER

Twenty-one licenses were issued and five refused while only five separation actions were filed, three by husbands and two by wives.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this, and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolvent. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's self—is an acid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks! —Adv.

"LOOK FOR LORECO"

LESS Choking

THE IDEAL WINTER-TIME GAS

AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE

A SLOW start of your motor on a cold morning with ordinary gasoline necessitates overworking the starter with choke drawn out. The air valve in the carburetor is closed, diminishing the supply of oxygen. Thus raw gasoline is drawn into the combustion chambers—gasoline that does not begin to vaporize until subjected to considerable heat. Only part of it is burned by this sort of forced starting, and crankcase dilution results.

Overcome all this by changing to "Loreco 88," the motor fuel with an initial boiling point of only 88 degrees. This means that "Loreco 88" begins to vaporize almost as soon as the motor starts revolving, ignites quickly and easily with the use of the choke reduced to the minimum; and thus your machine starts instantly in cold weather.

But, mind you, 88 degrees is only the initial boiling point. As the motor increases in heat the combustion of the dry vapor from "Loreco 88" is perfectly controlled so as to furnish all the power and mileage that has already made Loreco Gasoline famous. And all this at no increase in price. Winter-time driving becomes a pleasure when you adopt the use of "Loreco 88," the ideal winter-time motor fuel.

Loreco Motor Oil is made to withstand extremely low temperatures without congealing. It pours freely at zero. Hence it proves a master lubricant for winter-time driving, a worthy companion for "Loreco 88."

STATE SENATOR DEMANDS PROBE OF OHIO PROHIBITION BUREAU

M'DONALD ACCUSED OF WRONG PRACTICE IN LIQUOR RAIDING

Wants Explanation Of Methods Of Dry Law Prosecutions

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—An investigation of the state prohibition department of Ohio, when and if the legislature is called in special session early next year, was in prospect today, following the announcement of State Senator Paul Herbert, of Columbus that he would demand such action.

Herbert's announcement, made in an open letter to B. F. McDonald, state prohibition director, was the result of McDonald's open support of the Marshall justice of the peace bill, a measure designed to restore the fee-earning powers of rural justices of the peace and mayor-magistrates. The Marshall bill, passed by the last legislature, will be submitted to a referendum vote next week.

Herbert, in his letter, charged that McDonald's department was "dominated by the Anti-Saloon League," and that prohibition enforcement officers had "planted" evidence to obtain bootlegging convictions.

He demanded an explanation of the practice by attorneys for the Ohio Anti-Saloon League of prosecuting liquor cases worked up by McDonald's agents, and by constables.

Citing two instances in which he had obtained signed statements which indicated irregularities in the placing of evidence to obtain liquor convictions, Herbert asserted that such practices were carried on with the full knowledge of McDonald, and said that at the legislative investigation, he would call upon McDonald to explain the following specific charges:

1. The "planting" of liquor upon innocent persons.
2. Transfer of liquor from one court to another to be used as evidence.
3. Use of state inspectors to "serve the private whims and aims of the Anti-Saloon League."
4. Ursubstitution by attorneys of the Anti-Saloon League of the pre-rogatives of the prosecuting attorneys.
5. Wholesale pardoning of bootleggers from the Canton workhouse.
6. Use of forged search warrants in raiding homes.

REPORT 200 KILLED IN TRIBESMEN WAR

JERUSALEM, Nov. 2.—Two hundred Bedouin tribesmen were killed in a battle between the tribes of the powerful Ruwala tribe near Deras, the Syrian railroad junction near the Palestine border, according to reports from Damascus today.

The dispatches described the battle as growing out of a quarrel between two related tribes chiefs over the leadership of the Ruwala. A fierce tribal war raged for several days in the vicinity of Deras was also reported from Damascus.

It was believed here that the battle may have very serious consequences for the Ruwala tribe is the strongest in the vicinity and may influence other tribes to join it, thus causing a spread of war activity.

WRITING NAME ON BALLOT IS LEGAL

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 2.—A name written on a ballot constitutes a legal vote, even though the customary cross mark is not placed in front of the name. This ruling was announced today by the Ohio Supreme Court in disposing of a case from Montgomery County.

The supreme court rejected the appeal of the Montgomery County Board of Elections which sought a reversal of the judgment of the Montgomery County Common Pleas and Appellate Courts which decreed that votes cast for Frank Henry as a member of the Montgomery County Republican Central Committee, from the first ward of Dayton, were legal in cases where the voter wrote Henry's name on the ballot, but failed to place the cross mark in front of his name.

FATE OF ALLEGED SLAYER OF HUSBAND TO REACH JURY SOON

Cincinnati Woman Blames Murder On Man—Once Exonerated, She Faces Charges After Second Probe.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 2.—The fate of Mrs. Mary Miller, 27, on trial here for the murder of her husband, Emmett Miller, waterworks fireman, was to be given to a jury here this afternoon, at the conclusion of final arguments in Judge Edward M. Hurley's common pleas court, marking the end of a two weeks' trial.

Mrs. Miller pleaded not guilty, and testified that her husband was killed by Nathan Kite, of Reading, O., because he refused to help Kite dispose of the body of Floyd Renner, a Reading youth who was killed in a roadhouse brawl with Kite, according to Mrs. Miller, wanted to burn Renner's body in the waterworks furnace, but Miller refused to permit this.

In fear of her life because of threats made by Kite after he had killed her husband, Mrs. Miller testified, she at first admitted the killing, saying she had slain her husband when he attacked her with a poker. This story was at first accepted by authorities, and Mrs. Miller was exonerated by a coroner's inquest. Later, she repudiated this story, after the investigation had been reopened and she was indicted for first degree murder.

State's attorneys have indicated they will ask the jury to give the woman the death penalty in "summing up the case to the jury today."

Kite is under a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary for the slaying of Renner.

RAILROADS WANT TAX CUT

BUSINESS IGNORES WARNING OF MELLON ABOUT TAX DEFICIT

Railway Economist Pleads For Large Tax Reduction

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Spokesmen for the nation's railroads today joined in the fight of organized business to force a $400,000,000 tax cut in the coming congress despite the warnings of President Coolidge and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon that this would cause a deficit.

Pleading the cause of the railroads before the house ways and means committee, C. S. Duncan, economist for the Association of Railway Executives, asserted that railroads have paid out more money in taxes than dividends in the last seven years.

A flat cut in the corporation income tax rate from 13 to 10 per cent was demanded by Duncan and Alfred P. Thom, the association's general counsel.

Representatives of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association, National Coal Association and the Illinois Chamber of Commerce endorsed the demand that the corporation tax rate be cut before "hulsa" taxes are abolished.

Denying that this reduction would solely benefit men of great wealth, Duncan pointed out that 1,000,000 people own stock in railroads alone. The treasury has estimated that more than 3,000,000 individuals own stock in corporations.

Secretary Mellon has told you that in 1924 all corporations reporting net income had such a burden of taxes that for every dollar paid in dividends 54 cents were paid in taxes," said Duncan.

"I should like to call your attention to the situation with respect to Class 1 railroads for the same year. In the calendar year 1924 for every dollar paid in dividends these railroads paid 1.06 in taxes."

"For the past seven years the railroads have had to pay more in taxes, with the possible exception of 1921 and 1926, than they were able to pay in cash dividends to their stockholders."

The annual tax bill of Class 1 railroads, local, state and federal, is $388,000,000 a year, he said, the railroads would save $28,500,000 a year if the corporation tax rate were cut to 10 per cent, he said.

The committee had before it a statement of the first lukewarm advocate of tax reduction, Chester H. Gray, representing the American Farm Bureau Federation, asserted that congress' first duty is to pay off the remaining $18,000,000,000 of the war debt.

Harry L. Gandy, secretary of the National Coal Association, ignored the proposed abolition of the automobile and "hulsa" taxes in pleading for a lower corporation rate.

"Of all the inequitable features of the revenue act of 1926, undoubtedly the most serious is the discrepancy between the rate of tax levied on corporate income and that levied on the income of individuals," he said.

LOSSES EXTRADITION
STRUGGLE IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 2.—Nathan Weinzinner, alleged member of the Richard Whitworth bandit gang of New York, lost a two-year fight to avoid being extradited to New York City to face a charge of robbery here today, when the Ohio Supreme Court denied him a writ of habeas corpus.

Weinzinner, arrested in Cleveland, was charged with robbery of the Gondvis jewelry store, 48th St. and Fifth Ave., in which several hundred thousand dollars worth of gems were taken by bandits, January 11, 1926. He sought a writ of habeas corpus, which was denied, and was released under $50,000 bond pending an appeal to the supreme court. He will now be re-arrested and returned to New York.

OHIO POLITICIANS WATCHING
HOOVER SINCE BROWN IS NAMED

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 2.—Ohio politicians today were watching with renewed interest the political plans of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, following announcement by Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, that he had accepted an appointment tendered him as assistant secretary of the commerce department by Hoover.

Brown's acceptance was telephoned to Hoover at Washington last night, and Brown was making preparations to leave late today for the capital to take up his duties immediately.

Regarded as one of the canniest political leaders in the Buckeye state, Brown's associates here pointed out that he was relinquishing a lucrative law practice to accept the Hoover appointment, after refusing several more important diplomatic appointments from Republican administrations.

This, they pointed out, bears out the theory that his assumption of the assistant secretaryship under Hoover may have an important effect upon the Republican presidential boom of his chief.

LIFELESS HANDS STEER BOAT IN SEA TRAGEDY

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., Nov. 2.—Many are the strange craft that have touched at this port, and many are the strange tales that have been recounted by their imaginative crews, but all of these eerie tales of the sea were eclipsed today with the arrival here of the Japanese motor ship Ryo Yei Maru, in tow of the Margaret Dollar.

The Ryo Yei Maru, with the stiff and frozen bodies of two Japanese sailors propped up in the stern, was found tossing on the turbulent waters of the Pacific. Dead hands at the tiller—steering a course beyond the comprehension of those that live.

What happened on this ghost ship before the last sparks of life fluttered out of the bodies of the last two survivors?

It is not a pretty thing to contemplate. Evidence discloses that the law pertaining to the survival of the fittest was the law recognized on this craft.

Human bones were scattered on the deck of the ship. The bones were stripped of flesh, as if picked by vultures.

Dr. L. T. Seady, quarantine station boarding officer, said there was no doubt that cannibalism was practiced aboard the ill-fated ship.

It is thought that at least a dozen Japanese fishermen were aboard the vessel when it left its home port. Where the home port is, has not yet been ascertained. Opinions have been advanced here that the ship drifted across the Pacific, possibly even from Japan.

Advises from the Japanese consulate at Seattle were here today, in an effort to solve the grisly tragedy of the sea.

The Ryo Yei Maru, which translated means "good and prosperous" is a three-masted motor ship eighty-five feet in length.

One Man Buried Under Debris Of Detroit Building

A heavy blast shook the deserted streets of Highland Park. The roof of the Tivoli Theatre hurled skyward in blazing pieces, the side walls split outward, cement blocks weighing forty-five pounds hurtling through the air for nearly 200 feet, and a veritable rain of broken glass littered the pavement and sidewalks.

TOLEDO OHIO STATE
ALUMNI BODY WANTS
REMOVAL OF WILCE

TOLEDO, Nov. 2.—Demand for the removal of Dr. J. W. Wilce, veteran head coach of the Ohio State University football team, was voiced in a resolution adopted here last night at a closed session by the Toledo Alumni Association of the University, it was learned today.

The resolution specifically asked that a renewal of Dr. Wilce's contract, which is understood to expire in December, be not granted by university authorities.

The resolution was originally drafted following the defeat of Ohio University by Michigan, ten days ago.

Sixty-five members are said to have voted for the adoption of the resolution at last night's meeting, while thirty-five others pleaded for postponement of action until the football season is over.

Dr. W. W. Beck, president, and Charles Racine, past president of the local Alumni organization, declined to comment on the action. Dr. Boni Petcoff, coach at Toledo University and 1923 captain of Ohio State's team, declared the action of the Toledo Alumni was "hasty."

COLEMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Athletic officials at Ohio State University early today declined to comment upon the action of the Toledo Alumni Association, which adopted a resolution demanding the immediate removal of Dr. John W. Wilce, head coach of the varsity football team.

Dr. Wilce was busy preparing his team for the trip East to meet Princeton on Saturday, and other University authorities declined to discuss the resolution.

The resolution, according to information here, was adopted at a closed session of the Toledo Alumni Tuesday night.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—With eighty-one results declared, all indications today pointed toward a labor landslide in the municipal elections throughout most of the British Isles.

The indicated Laborite majority will be the second consecutive victory and appeared to be mainly at the expense of the conservatives.

According to the labor organ, the Daily Herald, the victories are "definitely significant for the next general election."

With the present returns, the Laborites registered ninety-nine gains as against the losses of sixty-two for the Conservatives.

The boys, both residents of Smyrna, are believed to have quarreled while drinking.

The shots were heard by neighbors who placed the boys in an auto and rushed them to the Dover hospital. There Stanley was pronounced dead and Bailey was said to be dying from two bullet wounds in the stomach.

TOLEDO OHIO STATE
ALUMNI BODY WANTS
REMOVAL OF WILCE

TOLEDO, Nov. 2.—Demand for the removal of Dr. J. W. Wilce, veteran head coach of the Ohio State University football team, was voiced in a resolution adopted here last night at a closed session by the Toledo Alumni Association of the University, it was learned today.

The resolution specifically asked that a renewal of Dr. Wilce's contract, which is understood to expire in December, be not granted by university authorities.

The resolution was originally drafted following the defeat of Ohio University by Michigan, ten days ago.

Sixty-five members are said to have voted for the adoption of the resolution at last night's meeting, while thirty-five others pleaded for postponement of action until the football season is over.

Dr. W. W. Beck, president, and Charles Racine, past president of the local Alumni organization, declined to comment on the action. Dr. Boni Petcoff, coach at Toledo University and 1923 captain of Ohio State's team, declared the action of the Toledo Alumni was "hasty."

COLEMBUS, O., Nov. 2.—Athletic officials at Ohio State University early today declined to comment upon the action of the Toledo Alumni Association, which adopted a resolution demanding the immediate removal of Dr. John W. Wilce, head coach of the varsity football team.

Dr. Wilce was busy preparing his team for the trip East to meet Princeton on Saturday, and other University authorities declined to discuss the resolution.

JURY SCANDAL ENDS FAMOUS FRAUD CASE ON THIRTEENTH DAY

Government Will Face
Great Expense For Second Trial

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Edward J. Kidwell, the self-styled "good yes and no man" on the Fall-Sinclair jury was taken into custody by Deputy U. S. marshals today within a half hour after a mistrial was declared.

Kidwell was halted by the deputies as he tried to leave the federal building. He appeared reluctant to accompany them but after they spoke to him a moment, he went along willingly. The jury was taken immediately to the grand jury room on the third floor of the building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The six-year effort of the federal government to punish Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall for an alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve ended today in a mistrial.

With affidavits before the District of Columbia Supreme Court sustaining charges that the jury had been shadowed by private detectives, and that one Sinclair had expressed prejudice in his favor, Federal Judge Siddons brought the notorious case to an abrupt end and remanded the defendants to a new trial.

It was the loose tongue of E. J. Kidwell, juror No. 11, who called himself a "good yes and no man" and told of expecting an automobile "as long as a city block" out of Sinclair's acquittal, that brought the trial to a premature close in the one instance. The other was the seizing, in a raid on the Burns Detective Agency Headquarters, of hour-by-hour reports on the activities of eleven of the twelve men and women in the jury box. These reports, according to the affidavits of the government, had gone into the hands of a Sinclair oil official.

"It is my belief and I aver," swore Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkushaw, "that the real evidence that detectives is Harry F. Sinclair, a defendant in this case."

The court after calling attention to the affidavits filed yesterday dismissed the jury and then ordered the trial adjourned. In his decision Siddons blamed the "wide publicity given to the affidavits and the proceedings in chambers" as furnishing additional reasons for his action in declaring a mistrial.

While a grand jury sat to weigh out indictments for jury tampering of this nature, Martin W. Littleton and George Hoover, Sinclair counsel, issued a joint statement professing complete ignorance of any such goings-on and declared the affidavits "make a mistrial a necessity and counsel for the defendants join with counsel for the government in the request for a mistrial."

Thus, after many months of tedious work assembling evidence and many thousands spent in assembling witnesses, Owen J. Robinson, Atlee Pomeroy, special federal oil counsel, must go over the same ground again. Oil experts and interested parties must be re-subpoenaed to return to Washington from as far away as Hawaii.

It is not thought a second trial will be possible before some time after the first of the year. Meanwhile, however, many of those figuring in the trial due to end today may be answering indictments from the grand jury sitting on the jury tampering charges.

BOY STUNNED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO ON GALLOWAY STREET

Robert Suesse, 3 son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Suesse, 132 W. Market St., was knocked down and rendered unconscious for a short time by a touring car driven by a man who gave his name as O. B. Plumber, 223 W. Main St., on N. Galloway St., Tuesday afternoon at 5:10 o'clock.

The driver stopped, picked the lad up and carried him to the Suesse home half a square away, where an examination by Dr. A. D. DeHaven determined the boy's injuries were not serious.

The youth was stunned but recovered five minutes after the accident. It is thought the front fender of the car struck the boy on the face. His condition was much improved Wednesday.

Karl Schneider, 219 N. West St., who witnessed the accident, said the boy ran directly in the path of the car, which was travelling south, and that the accident was unavoidable. He shouted a warning too late for the autoist to swerve to one side.

The boy had attempted to run across Galloway St. half-way between Church and Market Sts.

His father is supervisor of telegraph and signals for the Cincinnati Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

OCTOBER WEATHER UNUSUALLY WARM

Temperature during October was four degrees warmer than normal, according to the monthly summary of W. W. Neffert, Dayton weather observer.

The average temperature during the month was 59 degrees compared with a normal average of 55, and included a range of temperatures from 55 degrees October 1 to 36 degrees October 15. Highest temperature for this month since 1883 was 93 degrees, so no records were broken.

The month wound up with thirteen clear or only partly cloudy days, on which average temperature was mostly higher than 60 degrees. The temperatures excess for the month makes an accumulated excess temperature over normal of 263 degrees since January 1.

Total precipitation in October was 3.24 inches, an excess of .84 inches, making for an accumulated excess since January 1 of 1.27. There were fifteen clear days, nine partly cloudy, seven cloudy, seven on which rain fell and 238 hours of actual sunshine for a percentage of 66.

Thunderstorms occurred October 1, 6, 7, 12 and 31, with light frosts October 9, 16, and 26 and a heavy frost October 15.

AUTOIST FINED AND FORBIDDEN TO DRIVE

Clarence Mangan, 42, Jamestown Pike, was fined $100 and costs, had his right to drive a car suspended for thirty days and was given a suspended sentence of thirty days in the County Jail on a charge of driving an auto while intoxicated by Mayor John W. Prush Wednesday morning. He pleaded guilty.

Mangan was arrested by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, following an auto accident on E. Main St. late Tuesday afternoon.

Mangan, travelling east, was accused of crashing into an auto driven by an unidentified negro, who was backing the car out of an alley. Mangan claimed the auto was backed in front of his car while the colored man reported he had stopped the machine in the street and was waiting for traffic to clear before turning around.

A fender was torn off of the colored man's machine. Shagin investigated the crash.

HOLD 'EM, SHERIFF!

CHICAGO, Ill.—Angered because Judge Peter Schwab inferred that he had arrested a speeder without sufficient evidence, Deputy Sheriff Joseph White tore his star from his coat and hurled it on the bench. It bounced hitting the judge on the head. "I'm going to show you that no matter how tough you are or who you are you must respect this court," the judge retorted as he cited White for contempt of court and set his bond at $1,000.

WOMEN APPROACHING MIDDLE AGE

Pass Through This Trying Period in Good Condition by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Grow old along with me, The best is yet to be"

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women of middle age, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Jamestown News

More than sixty girls from Jamestown and its vicinity received the following invitation for last Friday night:

Out on the Spahr road
Under an elm tree
There will be a friendly ghost
Waiting for thee.
New to scare that white ghost,
Who be lots of fun,
So you dress up real funny
And see the ghost run.
Run into the house behind the
big tree,
And see what the ghost has planned for thee.

The hostess was Miss Jean Spahr and the party was unusual in its decorations and details. The guests were directed to the front stairway and when they reached the upper floor they found it had been turned into the semblance of a graveyard and was presided over by a skeleton and numerous ghosts, one of whom was a phantom riddler. To reach the lower floor again they had to use a back stairway which was dark and had been made into a slide which caused a great deal of noise and fun. Games and contests had been prepared and Miss Lucille Glover was awarded a prize for guessing the identity of the greatest number of the masked company. A witch who told fortunes added to the fun.

Even the basement was decorated with hanging bones and other gruesome articles and here the refreshments were served. These consisted of brown bread, baked beans, individual pumpkin pies with whipped cream and cider. The young people all agree that it was the best Halloween party they ever had.

HEALTH HINTS For Parents

Here's a way to make the most delicate boy hale and hearty, and "hard as nails." A way to build his body, and put on weight. Heed this hint, and no boy or girl of yours need ever take another cathartic!

Most ailments of children begin with being bilious; end the trouble then and there, with a spoonful of California Fig Syrup. Nothing stronger, nothing else. The bowels will do their duty without using force! If your children have already contracted the laxative habit, fig syrup will wear them away from it.

California Fig Syrup is a purely vegetable product. It will do your child a world of good; it is, in fact, a very wonderful conditioner for children or adults. Its rich, fruity flavor is so delicious, it's no hardship to take! Nor can it harm even an infant! Only one caution: be sure to get the genuine California Fig Syrup; don't neglect to say "California." It isn't expensive—sixty cents for a generous bottle at all dealers.

Try California Fig Syrup two weeks on any child, and let his altered appearance and actions tell the full story! —Adv.

Taxpayers Beware!!!

The defeat of the Marshall Bill will cost the taxpayers of the State of Ohio at least one half a million dollars.

Last year there was collected from the bootleggers, the sum of $1,200,000.

The defeat of the Marshall Bill means more taxes to meet the loss in fines.

The upholding of this Bill means a profit to the taxpayers, for the reason that in three courts in Hamilton County, outside of Cincinnati, there was a net profit of $54,000 and in Greene County in 1926, there was a profit of $2,110 after paying all costs.

The opposition also claims that Senate Bill No. 72 will tend to bring about unwarranted arrests. This criticism is unjust for the reason:

That under the old law, when the sky was the limit in regard to the amount of fees the magistrate could earn, there was no criticism of this kind. It is reasonable, therefore to believe that when they did not make arrests before in order to earn their fees, why, will they do so now when the maximum they can draw is $250 per month; but if they are so inclined it cannot be done for this reason:

That this Bill safeguards against this very thing, for the Bill provides that a magistrate cannot collect his fees until the fee bill is checked by the Prosecuting Attorney or the Attorney General and therefore if the Prosecuting Attorney is on his job, there can be NO unwarranted arrests.

TAKE CARE, LADDIE!

The dear old lady had never been to a football match before, and as she stood in the middle of a knot of spectators watching the feats of the team in which her grandson was playing, her delight knew no bounds.

But she was not a little alarmed by the way the players slipped about on the muddy field, and at last she could restrain herself no longer. Flaring her eyes on a fiery-headed youth, she cried loudly:

"Johnnie lad! If that tumbles mind as the doesn't tumble backwards. When I wor mendin' that pants last week I forgot to tek 't a leadle out, an' it's their yet!"

RETAIL MERCHANTS PLANNING DOLLAR DAY HERE NOVEMBER 17

Tentative plans for another "Dollar Day" backed by the Xenia Retail Merchants' Association, were discussed at the meeting in the associations rooms, W. Main St., Tuesday night.

"Dollar Day" will be held November 17, when Xenia stores will offer special bargains. The association hopes to make this "Dollar Day" bigger and better than ever and elaborate arrangements are being made by Xenia business houses, and with the co-operation of members of the Retail Merchant's Association, the date is expected to be a "red letter day" in Xenia buying history.

A banquet to sup interest in "Dollar Day" will be held for members of the retail merchants' organization Thursday evening, November 10, at 6:30 o'clock, at the Elks' Club. A full representation of the organization is being urged for the banquet, since plans for "Dollar Day" will be completed at this gathering.

E. A. DeMont, of The Toggery Shop; I. Friedman, of The Fur and Fur Store; and A. D. Chamberlain, Jobe Brothers Store, were appointed to visit Xenia business men and obtain the co-operation of all houses in putting "Dollar Day" over.

With the exception of the treasurer's report, other business, besides that involved with "Dollar Day" was dispensed with at the meeting.

SKETCHED ON THE COLLEGE CAMPUS

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Gazette

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—There's a lot of money waiting for the enterprising soul who compiles a dictionary of college lingo which will make the chatter of Mary and her brother, Joe College, understandable to the world outside the campus—

Imagine the bewilderment of Ma and Pa, down in the country, when Mary comes home for a vacation at Christmas time announcing, "Well Mom, I sure had a whirl with that gent at the dynamatory brawl last night! His dancings was so swell elegant I did tail spins all evening."

With the aid of a 1927 collegiate dictionary Mary's doting parents will be able to discover that a gent is college man, and a "dynamatory brawl" is just an innocent informal little house dance at the dormitory. A "whirl" is a good time and "tail spins" is a figure of speech meaning "thrilled to pieces."

"Swell elegant" is the collegiate way of saying "perfectly lovely."

The New Slang.

Thumbing the pages of the dictionary a bit further you will discover, among others, the following terms and their definitions set forth for the edification of the older generation.

Sudden rush of blood to the head—extreme embarrassment.

Like nothing else—in a class by itself.

My cow!—For goodness sake, or what have you.

I'll bop you one—I shall be forced to strike you.

Sus—what once were called "boy friends."

Sit by the fireside—a house date.

Oh, Allah—Oh, heavens!

Honey drip or washout—a college man who fails to meet with the approval of the co-eds.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound."

It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

NO WONDER KIERNAN BLUSHED AND "HOKE" SMITH LOOKED GOY AT MOCK "WEDDING"

Hilarious laughter supplanted the customary tears at the wedding performed at the joint meeting of Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, at Central High School, Tuesday evening.

Members of the two clubs, their wives and invited friends filled the auditorium for the "wedding" of two prominent Xenians. Never was a bride more blushing, a bridegroom more confused and nervous or a bridesmaid more coy or more charmingly dressed.

NOT WANTED BY READERS

If "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" then Dayton newspaper publishers must feel complimented.

A group of Dayton merchants have heavily financed a project known as the "Shopping News," which is little more or less than a multi-paged handbill, in which a number of advertisers use space.

The "Shopping News" is but a new application of an old advertising formula in a larger dose. It is merely the printing of much advertising on large sheets and distributing them free to the public. The advertising of the supporting merchants is the only printed matter the "Shopping News" contains. It has no other appeal.

Newspapers themselves do not attempt to foist an all-advertising publication upon their patrons. At great expense they gather local, national and world-wide news, they go to considerable outlay for news and feature pictures, they put great emphasis on speed and accuracy in presenting all fresh information which may be termed "news"; they carry immense budgets of features and syndicated material, such as special columns of informative and instructive articles, cartoons and other art, that represent the output of highly-paid artists.

With this argument to earn them a place on the reading table of the average home, the newspapers carry the advertising of merchants. However it appears that some of the merchants in Dayton were so thoroughly "sold" on the benefits of advertising, that they started a "Shopping News" to exploit their own merchandise, overlooking the merit of news, features and art that the newspapers themselves consider necessary to earn recognition.

If these merchants consider this advertising so worthwhile that they can afford a huge outlay of funds to support such a medium, they are paying a distinct compliment to the newspapers, for if the "Shopping News" possesses merit to warrant such an outlay, how much more merit must the newspaper bear, when it is sold to its subscribers on the basis of the news-interest it brings its readers?

On the other hand, if the "Shopping News" venture was a satisfactory medium for both advertiser and patron, the newspapers of the country would owe it a great debt of gratitude. For newspapers might then eliminate the expense of the vast news and feature service now carried, and sell all of the space in their newspaper, thereby producing a much greater income to themselves, at a much smaller expense.

This would be an ideal situation for the publisher, and of course the poor reader would suffer in silence, if such a program could be a success—but of course it couldn't. The "Shopping News" like the same sort of a venture here, not so long ago, will fall of its own weight. It is not a sound proposition. There is no place for a free distribution advertising sheet, except it is carried by the advertiser as a dead expense over and above his regular newspaper advertising expenditure.

The Way of the World

YOUTH AND RELIGION

A hopeful pastor in a large city says youth is coming to regard religion as something that can be applied to the whole realm of life, and not to be used in compartments. If young people are reaching this conclusion they are passing beyond the conception of the older generation and they are doing well. The trouble with what grown-ups call religion is that it is made merely a department of life—like grandfather's Saturday night bath.

Religion isn't a departmental phase. It is meant to give current to the stream of life.

BE PRETTY, IF POSSIBLE

A Chicago woman, 61 years old, was shot twice by her husband because she insisted on using rouge and powder in an effort to make herself beautiful. This is pathetic here. The poor woman was all in the right and the husband all wrong. One of the finest things about the human being is the sense of beauty. It is more finely developed in women. Every normal woman wants to be beautiful and most of them have the intelligence to try to be beautiful. They have a right to beauty and it is a duty to themselves to try and attain it. Cosmetics and anything else that helps are reasonable means.

For every man who shoots his wife because she tries to be beautiful, there are ten men who forget their wives because they are not beautiful or don't try to be.

PROSPERITY

Secretary of Labor Davis is right when he says American prosperity rests upon the twin rocks of high wages and great mechanical development. The invention of amazing machinery for high speed production, plus the high wages which create a buying market, have made us a prosperous people. But there is something more important than all this. What are we going to do now to raise the moral and intellectual standard of the newly prosperous? Machinery and high wages do not of themselves build character.

REASON IS NOT EVERYTHING

Perhaps the sharpest criticism of the age is to say that we take too much stock in reason. Things must look reasonable to our finite minds or we are not convinced. Reason is not all. Men and women have other faculties. Hope, faith, imagination, perception, intuition—these are all real and definite qualities. Emotion may be as important as vital, as essential, as reason. What you FEEL may be as important as what you can prove. The faculty of reasoning is not all. We have limited minds—or at least so far we are limited in our use of them. There are things that yet defy our reason. But that does not make them untrue.

NEWS COMMENT AND VIEWS

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Add to the many mournful plights of New Yorkers, this pathetic story. A poor family of the east side recently lost two children, when the latter were trapped in a tenement fire. Now the two babies are in the morgue and they will be buried in Potter's field unless the parents can raise enough money for an orthodox burial. And as things appear now, the parents will not be able to secure the required amount. That, it seems to me, is a tragedy which can only be found in a city as large as this one.

The Evening World here has been running a unique feature which lists and describes the many strange jobs which are found here. Consider the young lady who runs the elevator in the Woolworth Tower. She says that here is the most beautiful employment in the city and that she would not descend to mundane levels for a great deal more salary than she is now getting. Then there is the man who feeds the fishes—day in and day out—in the aquarium. And another whose duty it is to place signals on the tower of the United States weather bureau, to inform ships in the harbor of what they may expect. Flags are used in the daytime, colored lights at night.

It would be hard to find a more Irish name than that of a Patrick Walsh who is the traffic cop stationed at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. His is the distinction of guiding the world's largest flow of traffic. A learned gentleman in the Bronx has exclusive charge of the snakes in the city zoo. Another civil employe makes his home in the Statue of Liberty. He is the lady's protector and caretaker. A young man from Brooklyn drives a bus all day long, and he never encounters a bit of traffic. For his bus is the only vehicle which runs back and forth under the new tunnel under the Hudson.

The other night I happened to be among the crowd in the theatre district, which was entertained by the spectacle of some half dozen policemen going cowboy. A truck had been traveling through the streets, laden with calves, and through some mishap, the calves had escaped. Thereupon our versatile and self-conscious guardians of the peace took to lariats and chased madly up and down the street, flinging their ropes at the frightened animals. As a loyal local citizen, I must admit that as cow punchers our policemen are good constables.

There is a ragged gamine who haunts the imposing front of Remy's theatre. He stands back most of the time, unobtrusive in the crowd. But when a taxi draws up, he dashes forth to open the door—invariably getting there ahead of the uniformed chauffeur. He also usually gets a tip, which the starter is not allowed to take, on pain of dismissal. And it is not unlikely that that is why the starter is always late in getting there. It would not surprise me to learn that he got a rake-off from the urchin.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

Our Desire to Be Exclusive
We humans are ever trying to feel that we are doing something important, exclusive. Even a lodge which one may join about as readily as becoming a customer at the nearest barber shop, is certain to have formalities and preliminaries intended to make the joiner feel that he is being honored.

A man likes to be in a club whose requirements are high enough to keep out many applicants while still low enough not to bar him. But after once joining, he is secretly pleased if these requirements are raised—so that a candidate must show a college degree, better social standing, more highly approved ancestry, or anything else which distinguishes between those who are in and the unfortunates who are out.

Much the same thing happens in a way in churches. More than one minister has told me that the reason his church does not grow is because those in control do not want it to grow.

There are always those who feel that "if everybody's going to belong to our church, then what's the point of my belonging to it?" I wonder if the boy who succeeds in crawling under the tent into a circus isn't secretly pleased when his companions, trying to get in, are turned away.

The men who contribute most heavily to the upkeep of a church, and who, though in the minority, are thus able to boss things, are likely to be men whose capacity for wickedness is somewhat circumscribed. To begin with, they may be too old to have retained much interest in devilry, and their position in the community as prominent citizens is such that they would not think it prudent to be conspicuously sinful, even if they had the ambition. Many a man thinks he is forcing sin because sin is wisely forsaking him.

Such men are not much in sympathy with impiety in others. They are opposed to letting their church be a social center, unwilling to sanction dancing and card playing by their younger members.

Oo-o-o-o! Hobgoblins—Ghosts! Oo-o-o-o!

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McCLONE GIBSON
BRAINS

It seems as though every girl and boy that one meets nowadays is thinking about getting married. Some of them are quite serious about it, and others are frankly facetious.

Said one yesterday in my hearing, "I am going to add one more marriage to the divorce cases next month."

"Why do you think you run any chance of being divorced?" he was asked.
"Because," he answered quickly, "I am going to marry a girl with brains, and that is always taking a long chance, but I love Louise in spite of her brains, and consequently I am going to take a chance."

I looked at the youth in mute surprise. Before I could recover my astonishment he further explained rather shamefacedly, "You see she is very pretty and she tells me that she can cook just as well as an ugly girl."

Is there a woman in this world, young or old, with a modicum of gray matter behind her more or less lustrous eyes, who has not heard time and again that a brainy woman cannot be domestic?

Is there anything about brains that will keep her from having energy, courage, self-reliance, absolute honesty, common sense and understanding? Does it not take brains to understand these things?

Do brains preclude the possession of charity, purity of thought and act, and above all, love of home?

Does it not take as much brains to make a home out of a house as it does to provide the home?

If I were a man I would much prefer brains to beauty; grace of mind to grace of body. The brainiest girl is one who has the broadest toleration and the greatest forbearance, two of the most necessary qualities in a successful married life.

True, a brainy woman does not always accept a man at his own valuation, but if her husband is worthy of her faith and trust, the bigger her brain the more completely will she pour out her heart; the more completely will she turn her attention to making her marriage successful, as she knows that only there her happiness lies.

Memo: The girl without brains cannot always appreciate her husband, but the girl with them knows that there is nothing that can take the place of home and children in a woman's life.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Forlorn Figures"
The most forlorn figures in the world to me are not the ones who have love troubles, but the ones that don't. Those who do not attract friends or lovers suffer the real tragedy of life.

A lonely girl writes:
"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18 years old and am a senior in high school. Regardless of the fact that I am considered good looking I am without friends and very lonesome. When school is over each day, the students group together and go down the street, but as I have no one to go with, all I can do is hasten home. I just can't make friends, as I always feel self-conscious, even in school."

"Now, Mrs. Lee, after knowing my feelings, I feel certain that you will tell me through the column what I must do to overcome them. A LONESOME BLOND."

Forget yourself and be interested in others. It sounds easy, doesn't it, but I know very well it is not. But it can be done, my dear, and you are going to do it. Every time "you" loom up in your mind firmly crowd it out with thoughts of interesting things and people. Try to think that other people are often shy and ill at ease, too, and by talking to them you can put them at their ease. Read and study hard, not only books, but people. Keep right at it, no matter how discouraged you get, and in time you'll win. And you can make this trouble of yours a bond to draw people to you.

Here's another:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I was very disappointed to find that my letter was not published in the column. I am a girl of 26 years and it seems that I am left alone. I never did work. I stay home and help mother and that is the reason I can never get acquainted with friends. I am allowed to go places, but must be home in a decent hour. Nowadays life is so fast that people are not old-fashioned. I admit I am old-fashioned. I am never invited out because the girls and fellows who know me think I am too slow. I know how to hold a conversation if I only had a chance to get acquainted with a nice girl around my age who is as lonesome for a friend as I am."

There are a good many young people who are "old-fashioned" like you, so you ought not to be lonesome. Did you ever hear of the slow club started by a boy and a girl in Philadelphia? Why not start one of your own? Or join some of the classes at the Y. W. C. A.? One usually meets nice girls at things of that kind.

"Sad Eyes" has written me another letter and she still wants a home. But she has not told me her real name. Do you think a letter addressed, "Sad Eyes, town of so and so, and state of ditto" will reach you, "Sad Eyes"? Does the postmaster of your town know you by that name?

WANTING A FRIEND.

EXCELLENT SUGGESTION
"You lead the orchestra, sir?" asked the tired business man in the cabaret.
"I do," replied Professor Jazzy, proudly.
"Then would you mind leading them out for a bit of air?"

Household Hints

MENU HINT

Cold sliced meat or meat loaf for the guest dinner saves a lot of last minute work for the woman who does her own cooking. Either may be prepared the day before. As both the hostess and the guest enjoy the occasion more when the former is not tired out, it is well to consider such a dish when making out your menu. A hot soup as a first course is good to serve when cold meat is used and the potatoes should be creamed or otherwise prepared so as not to need gravy.

Cream of Tomato Soup
Veal Loaf
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Cranberry Jelly
Endive and Orange Salad
Pumpkin Pie
Coffee
Chesse

Today's Recipes.

Veal Loaf—Select two and one-half pounds of lean veal. An inexpensive cut if it has bone will serve the purpose. Cook this until the meat falls off the bone. Pour the meat juice into a cup. Cut the meat into small pieces. Arrange slices of hard boiled egg in the bottom of a loaf dish, then a layer of meat, followed by a layer of thinly sliced sweet pickles, then another layer of canned peas. Repeat layer of canned peas, repeat until the dish is filled (use six sweet pickles and about one and one-half cups of canned peas from which the liquor has been drained). Then over all pour the meat juice, which will tell the loaf. Let stand over night and turn out on platter garnished with lettuce.

Endive and Orange Salad—Wash and break in small pieces two heads of white endive or chicory; arrange on serving plates; cover with sections of peeled oranges and pour over all a sharp lemon French dressing.

Suet Pudding.
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tasty Recipe.)
One cup chopped suet, one cup molasses, or one-half cup molasses and one-half cup sugar, one-half cup milk, one cup raisins, two teaspoons baking powder, two cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon soda. Steam two hours. Serve with liquid sauce.

QUICK THINKING

On the blackboard a boy with a certain amount of artistic genius had drawn a life-like caricature of a certain master. Shortly after, to his horror, that master entered the room. Presently the portrait on the blackboard caught and held his attention. He looked at it in anger for a moment or two, and then faced the class.

"Who is responsible for this atrocity?" he asked in a voice of thunder.
The artist got slowly to his feet and coughed nervously.
"I strongly suspect his parents," he observed, and sat down.

Cruelty to Horses

They told of a dear old lady who could not be prevailed upon by her son, a prominent engineer, to accompany him to a polo match. She had a vague idea, it seems, that the horses were frequently killed. Her son laughingly assured her that she must be thinking of bull fights and that the only weapon used in polo was a mallet. "It is," he told her "very much like croquet." The dear old lady was still adamant. "I couldn't bear," she explained, "to see the poor horses trip on the wickets."

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—For a man who was barred, as a "red," out of two congresses to which he had been elected, who spent a couple of years of his life with a 20-year penitentiary sentence hanging over his head, and was chosen, the other day, to the Socialist party leadership once held by the late Eugene V. Debs—who actually served a stretch in "rat" prison—Victor L. Berger's a surprising popular representative in Washington.

It isn't so surprising, at that, when you understand why, but it seems so, at first thought.

The idea's this:

We have in congress a smallish, but troublesome group, largely of Representatives, but to some extent of Democrats, who call themselves "radicals," or "progressives," or what-not.

They give the "regulars" of both parties an acute, three-cornered pain, because they won't stay "in line."

To Victor Berger they give, equally, a violent, triangular pain, because, calling themselves "radicals," which he is, he considers them no such thing.

The congressional conservatives, Republican and Democratic, and Victor Berger, Socialist, have this in common:

The "progressive," self-styled, made 'em both sick.

The conservatives—many—and Victor Berger—one—get together on this issue in the most fraternal way.

When the "progressives" have the conservatives sit back and sneer—but everybody knows THEY'RE conservatives. Congressman Berger sits back, and as an EXPEIENCED sneerer, too. It's a million to conservatism—so long, of course, as Berger remains in a minority of ONE, or thereabouts.

When the conservatives pan the "progressives," "Go to it," is Congressman Berger's attitude. "They're no friends of mine," "Berger knows," comment all true-blue "reds" and the "progressive" punch is weakened 75 percent.

When Berger has something to say, "Fair play!" chortle the conservatives. "Give him all the time he wants."

All of which is water over Congressmen V. Berger's wheel. Not for a minute is it to be supposed that he's playing the conservative's game.

In congress he's a party of one man.

He wishes he were stronger. "If only there were 35 of me," he says. There are 435 members of the house of representatives.

"One man can't talk enough," he explains. They'll let him talk all he likes. "Yes," he answers, "but that's because I don't. If I said all I have to say I'd be as tiresome as—"

There! Let's draw a veil. Let's not tell whom he'd be as tiresome as.

Representative Berger makes three or four speeches in the course of a session of congress—little gems, of 10 or 15 minutes each.

He could make plenty more, but if he fell for that, they wouldn't be so good. He estimates 'em to a tick, and the galleries are full when it's announced he's going to make one.

Don't imagine it's a crowd of long-haired anarchists he draws. His audience is bald-headed, like Nicholas Longworth and John Hays Hammond and Justice Taft—who comb his locks over his worn spots—who like good literary stuff.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Exercise to Strengthen and Beautify Your Feet

The muscles which control your feet extend all the way up your leg through the thighs. The most powerful muscles in your whole body are located in your thighs. So when you want to strengthen your feet, you must think of them only as a continuation of the entire leg.

You can greatly increase your ability to stand and walk comfortably and gracefully by giving the right exercise to your legs and feet. And you can also do a great deal toward preventing such foot ills as fallen arches, chilblains, etc. Chilblains, by the way, are due to lack of circulation, and you can guard against them by keeping the blood stream active, coursing through your legs and feet. Walking (to the right), swimming and dancing, are all excellent for the feet. Then there are local exercises for strength and beauty which I am going to describe to you.

Running is one of the best there is for developing the feet, but a grown woman, especially if she lives in a city, has small opportunity to engage in that particular sport. Here is a running exercise you can do at home: Place your hands on your hips and put your feet in a "knowing" or "dime" position. Increase the speed faster and faster. Do this three minutes daily.

Stand with your back against a chair or some other support. Bend one knee, bringing it to a right angle, with the foot pointed downward, then rotate your lower leg from the knee joint, keeping the toe pointed downward. It is also excellent to rotate each foot at the inner side out. Then take each toe and rotate it with your finger, being strain not to strain it. Then curl your toes up and down. This relieves them after the cramping of shoes.

An excellent exercise to improve your gracefulness in walking is the leg swinging. Swing your leg back as far as it will go without bending the knee, and then forward. It is well to begin doing this exercise resting your hand against some support. And if you stand on a book or foot stool, it gives the feet a better chance to swing free from the floor.

If you are subject to aches in the balls of your feet, or if you have trouble with fallen arches, it is good to try picking up marbles between your toes. This strengthens the traverse arch that crosses your foot just behind the toes.

I have told you a number of exercises which will do a great deal to cultivate, strengthen and thus beautify the feet, legs and ankles. The modern mode of short skirts has thrown feet and legs so into the foreground that women are becoming much more interested in developing their beauty, and if it ever becomes the fashion to go barefoot, I predict there will be vast numbers of women going into seclusion for fear of their feet. This is, we are catching up, but I am sure that if women had had warning that dresses were to be so very short and remain that way indefinitely, we would have a much better looking parade of women pedestrating on our city streets.

Since such play such a tremendous large part in foot beauty, I am going to devote my next talk to "How to Choose Your Footwear."

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

Safe in Mother's Wing

"Great Scott! What a dizzy ride!" exclaimed Peter, as Mrs. Flittermouse came to a stop by a clover clump, its faint pink blossoms gleaming white in the light of the moon. "You came within an ace of catching your wing in the prickly pear, Mrs. Flittermouse, or, at least, I thought you did, but I guess you knew what you were doing, all right. For here we are in the meadow, the trees and gloom all behind us. And it is so much more pleasant than the woods, don't you think so?"

"Oh, I don't know. I like the deep woods pretty well myself. Shortly after, to his horror, that master entered the room. Presently the portrait on the blackboard caught and held his attention. He looked at it in anger for a moment or two, and then faced the class.

"Who is responsible for this atrocity?" he asked in a voice of thunder.
The artist got slowly to his feet and coughed nervously.
"I strongly suspect his parents," he observed, and sat down.

Cruelty to Horses

They told of a dear old lady who could not be prevailed upon by her son, a prominent engineer, to accompany him to a polo match. She had a vague idea, it seems, that the horses were frequently killed. Her son laughingly assured her that she must be thinking of bull fights and that the only weapon used in polo was a mallet. "It is," he told her "very much like croquet." The dear old lady was still adamant. "I couldn't bear," she explained, "to see the poor horses trip on the wickets."

The boy was about to make some reply when he heard a strange sound, half squeak, half sob. Yet there wasn't a creature abroad but himself and Mrs. Flittermouse, as far as he could see. "Who was that?" whispered he. Instead of answering, Mrs. Flittermouse spread her wings and flew over the clover clump, alighting on a large flat stone on the farther side. But the weak little squealing went on, as plain to be heard as before. Whoever was making the noise must have followed the Bat in her flight. Peter was more puzzled than before.

to his question Peter was so surprised that he tumbled to the stone in a hurry. "W-w-w-what's the matter?" stammered he. Then something happened Peter never would have believed possible if he had not seen it with his own eyes.

Mrs. Flittermouse slowly unfolded her wings, and bent towards the boy.

"Look," whispered she. "But shh! Don't make a noise. He is dropping off to sleep again."

There, cuddled in a fold of Mrs. Flittermouse's wing, was a tiny baby Bat, not much bigger than a birdling's.

"LOOK! HE WHISPERED SHE 'HE IS DROPPING OFF TO SLEEP AGAIN.'"

Yellow Jackets Crush Antioch Second Time

CEDARVILLE FIRST STRING SQUAD RUNS UP DECISIVE SCORE

Running And Passing Attack Too Much For Antioch

Exhibiting a powerful comeback in the second half, the Cedarville College "Yellow Jackets" meted out a crushing 40 to 6 defeat to the Antioch College Division B football eleven in the latter's initial game on the Cedarville gridiron Tuesday afternoon.

Cedarville has now registered two victories this season and both have been at the expense of Antioch. Antioch's Division A team was smothered by Coach Borst's eleven 35 to 0 September 27. It marked the first time in the history of Cedarville that the college has defeated Antioch twice in one year, having rolled up seventy-eight points to Antioch's six.

The Yellow Springs school was off to a flying start in Tuesday's encounter, scoring the first touchdown of the contest in the opening quarter as a result of a march down the field to the ten-yard line, from where Halfback Seaman, with perfect interference, circled end for a score. The goal kick was missed.

With the exception of the first few minutes of the game, Antioch was clearly outplayed, however, Cedarville registering twenty-three first downs to two for Antioch.

It was not until the last few minutes of play in the first half that Cedarville registered its first touchdown to tie the score. The marker came as a result of a succession of forward passes. Adair completed a pass to Rutan and another forward, Nagley to Freeder, placed the ball on the ten-yard line. Rutan raced across for a score and also received a perfect pass from Adair for the extra point, putting his team into the lead by one point as the half ended.

In the second half there was a totally different story to tell. Antioch appeared to have exhausted its strength in the first half and the Yellow Jackets counted two touchdowns in the third quarter and three more in the last period, mixing up slashing line plays and passes nicely.

Rutan went across for Cedarville's first score in the second half, but a pass was incomplete for the extra point. A few minutes later Fisher, right end, caught a pass from Captain Nagley and raced forty yards for a touchdown. Fisher also contributed the extra point, arching a perfect drop-kick over the cross bar.

As the fourth quarter opened, Adair heaved a pass to Freeder, who was thrown on Antioch's eight. Freeder plunged to the two-yard mark and Captain Nagley, who has not figured in the scoring this season, was given the honor of going across with the counter. Fisher kicked goal.

After receiving the next kickoff, Adair, on the first play, hurried a pass to Little, who made a spectacular fifty-five-yard run for a touchdown. Pass for extra point was intercepted. The final score came with Cedarville's second string players in the game. Rutan, Freeder and Townsley alternated in carrying the ball and a march down the field ended with Rutan plunging across for the score. Freeder place-kicked goal.

Cedarville's regular team played only nineteen minutes of the game but piled up thirty-three points while in the pastime.

Brown, Ellies and Horney played outstanding games on the line for the Yellow Jackets while Rutan's line plunging was a feature. Bostwick and Seaman starred for Coach Kennedy's eleven.

Cedarville has won two and lost five games this season while one resulted in a tie score. However, Cedarville has scored a total of 140 points to opponents' ninety-five, has scored at least one touchdown in every contest and has lost four games by one touchdown and a fifth by one point.

Cedarville will wind up its schedule Friday afternoon, meeting Ball's Teachers' College at Muncie, Ind. A scheduled game with Manchester College, at Manchester, Ind., the following day has been cancelled.

Adair, sensational half-back sustained a serious injury to his nose in the Antioch tussle and it is doubtful whether he will be able to participate in the final game Friday. Lineups and summary:

CENTRAL GRIDDRERS PRIMED FOR WILMINGTON GAME THURSDAY

Central High gridirers are being primed for the annual football game with Wilmington High Thursday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field, which will be the eighteenth meeting of the two schools on the gridiron since 1911. The contest will start at 3 o'clock. The Blue and White squad is brushing up on forward passes and if line plays are unavailing against the Quaker team the contest may develop into a forward passing affair. Coach Kolb is also working to perfect a passing defense as this favorite method of attack proved a boomerang in the Withrow tussle last week.

MORTON FLASHING ON GRIDIRON

BOB MORTON

Performance of Captain Robert Morton, halfback, has been an outstanding feature of Central High School's exploits on the gridiron this season. Particularly in the Withrow game last week, Morton never displayed his football talent to better advantage.

In this game the Blue and White leader played the best game of his scholastic career, returning punts for an average of twenty yards and giving the Tiger team constant trouble with his broken field running. He scored both Xenia touchdowns.

Morton combines all the assets a player can possess. He can run, ends, plunge the line, pass the ball, receive passes, and is the team's regular kicker. Much of Xenia's gridiron success the last two years is attributed to this lad, one of the most popular football captains the school has ever had.

HOME ELEVEN WILL TANGLE WITH EAST

East High School and the O. S. and S. O. Home football elevens, both undefeated this season, will lock horns for the second time Friday afternoon at Cox Memorial Athletic Field. The contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Both schools have impressive gridiron records this season. The Home and East High met earlier in the season but the question of superiority is still doubtful as the game ended in a tie, 19 to 19.

MOTHER OF ERNEST BRADFORD CALLED

Mrs. Rebecca Bradford, 88, mother of Ernest Bradford, Trebeins, died at her home in Columbus, early Wednesday morning. Death was caused by infirmities of age.

Mr. Bradford left for Columbus Wednesday morning on receipt of word of his mother's death. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 3:30 at her home.

HALITOSIS? KILL IT!

Seven times in ten, Halitosis is due to a sour, gassy stomach, caused by intestinal stasis, or "Constipation." People with halitosis (unpleasant breath) are shunned, avoided, because they are like a "plague"—friends just can't endure being near such a person. Old and young, rich and poor, none escape if fermented food remains in the body more than 24 hours. Even if the bowels move slowly, there is often a remainder of foul decaying matter, that can only be removed with a thorough cleansing such as Blackburn's Cascara-Royal Pills produce. This sweet little pill is "Better than Castor Oil."

Its action is pleasant and prompt. Stomach, liver, spleen and intestines, all are benefited. Effect is so different from ordinary laxatives, salts, calomel, etc. A smooth, abundant action from the very first dose, soon rids you of all the disagreeable symptoms.

Let the whole family learn the value of Blackburn's Cascara-Royal Pills, 45 pills, 30 cts. at drug stores.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches rub on good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

WHO IS IT? GUESS AGAIN!

This is not your famous "Red" Grange, but his brother, Garland. He is trying to equal his brother at Illinois.

The Theater

The movie actress is not only among the best dressed women—but the oftenest dressed. That is the verdict in New York, the center of style and clothes of America. Movie stars and movie companies are among the very best and biggest of Fifth Avenue's customers.

The movie companies are even better customers than the movie stars; because film producers necessarily must have enormous wardrobes on the lot, fit for the needs of any film. One movie company possesses no fewer than 22,000 articles of clothing of which 10,000 are dressed. Many of these have been worn by leading women boots and 100 bedroom slippers. Ballroom extras may wear these later on. Hats? There are 2,539 of them. And, believe it or not, 1,539 undershirts. Also 760 pieces of underwear and 364 negligees. Night gowns, 250. For bathing girls 396 swimming suits are kept on hand. Among sport costumes are 128 riding habits. Those kitchen scenes demand the presence of 600 aprons. Other items are 1,129 waists, 675 capes, and coats, 552 suits, 379 skirts, 215 sweaters, 165 hawls, and scarfs and fur pieces.

John Luther Long, 66, author of "Madame Butterfly" and other stories and plays, died at a hospital in Clifton Springs, N. Y., Monday. He wrote the story of "Madame Butterfly" on which Puccini's famous opera was based. Among his other efforts were "The Darling of the Gods," "Adra," written for Mrs. Leslie Carter, "Kassa" and "Dolce," and numerous others.

Irene Rich, who for a while abandoned the role of the forsaken wife for most sophisticated parts, is returning to the old type in her next picture, "Beware of Married Men."

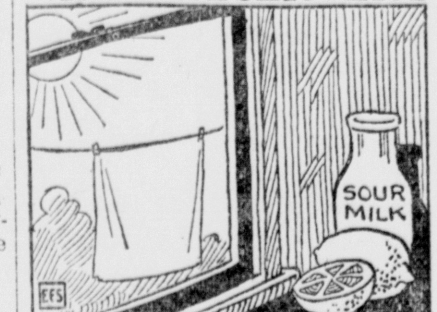

Florence Mills, 32, an internationally known colored entertainer, died at the Joint Disease Hospital, New York, Tuesday, after an operation for appendicitis. She returned recently from triumphs in London and Paris and was sent to the hospital a few days later. Miss Mills was recognized by critics as the leading race actress and was said to be a favorite performer of the Prince of Wales.

ESCAPED PRISONER
CAPTURED TUESDAY
BY OSBORN MARSHAL

Clarence Blair, 21, prisoner in the County Jail, who walked away from the institution October 11 while serving as a trustee, is under arrest at Osborn, according to Sheriff Ohmer Tate.

Deputy Sheriff George Sinden was assigned to return Blair to Xenia Wednesday and Probate Judge S. C. Wright will determine whether additional punishment will be meted out to the man. Blair was captured by Marshal William A. Schneider, Osborn.

Arrested August 6, Blair was admitted to the County Jail several days later after being convicted in Probate Court on charges of operating an auto while intoxicated and intoxicated.

He was committed in default of a fine of $25 and costs for the first offense and $50 fine and costs on the drunk charge.

Blair served two months and had one more month to serve when he escaped. He was serving as a trustee outside the jail when he walked away.

Blair came to Greene County from Ironton, Ohio, and was employed at the Southwestern Portland Cement Co. plant at Osborn at the time of his arrest.

HUNGARIAN GIRL
HOPES TO BE DIPLOMAT

AGATHA FEDAK.
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2—Agatha Fedak lived in Budapest. She often dreamed of visiting America where they were producing Ferenc Molnar's plays, "Lilom" and "The Play's the Thing."

For Agatha's aunt, Sari Fedak, is the great Hungarian actress whom Molnar married and for whom he wrote his star roles. Agatha determined that she must visit the United States. How to get there?

She was a student of languages (she speaks six fluently) at the state university of Budapest. Her professors told her not to study French, English or Italian in a land as young as America. They felt certain that American colleges stood almost exclusively for athletics.

Awarded Scholarship.
"And so," Agatha Fedak, who is a young, strong, blonde, blue-eyed Hungarian girl, explained, "I decided to apply for a scholarship in physical education. I got it through the International Student Exchange and here I am at Temple University which they picked for me."

"Now that I have been in your country several weeks, I like it. Back in Hungary, where I have a title, people could never understand my love of sports. I was one of the very few girls in Budapest who could ski and skate and play tennis and swim."

Many things here surprise Miss Fedak. She is astonished at the youth of the college professors. In Hungary they are all old, she says. She can not get accustomed to seeing women doing everything every where.

"Men First" in Hungary.
"At home, especially since the war, only a few women can get into our colleges. Our universities are so overcrowded. We think the men should be allowed to go first. We have no women professors in Hungary. There is only one woman architect and one woman lawyer in all of Hungary."

"The vote? We have it only after we are thirty years old, or have three children, or are very influential—have what you call push, or pull, I think."

It is Agatha Fedak's ambition, after staying in the United States a year or two, to go to Rome and then to Geneva. She wants to devote her time to some international organization, like the League of Nations or the International Bureau de Travail.

Money Love

"THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled child of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS who have always lived far beyond their means. Lily has been spoiled to be beautifully useless, and her highest ambition is realized when she becomes engaged to STALEY DRUMMOND, a wealthy bachelor much older than herself.

On the morning after he asks her to marry him he telephones to say he is coming to see her that afternoon, and Lily's mother asks him to stay for dinner. Lily begins to look ahead to wonder what life would be like if she had to eat dinner with Staley Drummond all the rest of her life. She likes him, and the thought of his money entrances her, but she wonders if she ought not to be more deeply in love with him than she is, if she is going to marry him. She starts out in the rain to see her friend, SUE CAIN, to ask her to be maid-of-honor at her wedding in June.

On the way to the restaurant where Sue is lunching she sees a very good-looking man watching her in the street. She feels herself oddly attracted by him before she notices that he wears a uniform and is standing beside his taxicab. Moved by a sudden impulse, she gets into the cab and tells him to drive her back home. She forgets all about Sue Cain until she is in the cab.

The car stops on the way out to her father's house, and the driver cheerfully gets out in the rain to see what is wrong with his engine. He tells Lily how much motors attract him and starts to tell her about some new automobile part he is inventing and then stops as if he thinks he is talking too much and the drive ends in silence. As Lily gets out of the cab she takes the card with the name "Pat France" and his photograph upon it, and slips it into her purse. That night, after dinner, when Staley and she are sitting before the fire and she is trying to convince herself that she loves him, her mother comes to the door and says that a taxi-driver is waiting to see her about something.

(NOW GO IN WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER III

LILY's big eyes grew bigger still with amazement. "A taxi-driver to see me!" she said quickly, "A taxi-driver?" She knew, of course, that it must be Pat France. But why on earth had he come here to her father's house? What did he want to see her for?—Insisting upon seeing her, too?

"The check of him" she said to herself, and then another thought came tumbling into her mind. He had come for that card that she had taken from his cab that afternoon! The card with his name and his picture on it—the card that was lying in the bottom of her handbag upstairs this very minute!

With a nervous little laugh she got up from the flowered chintz couch where she and Staley were sitting, and he got up too. He looked at her with a twinkle of amusement in his eyes.

"What have you done? Forgotten to pay a cab fare, Lily?" he asked good-humoredly.

And then Lily did a foolish and senseless thing. She took a thing to her lips, and it was a white lie. A lie that was going to breed a great deal of trouble before it was forgotten.

"Yes," she said, almost without thinking. If she thought about it at all, it simply seemed the easiest thing to say—the easiest explanation of this unexpected visit from a taxicab driver.

She walked slowly out of the room and into the big hall of the house that was more like a friendly room than just an entrance hall, with its coal-fire in the grate and its big bowl of daffodils on the center table. Just inside the door stood Pat France. He had his cap in his hand and under the artificial light his blue eyes looked even bluer than they had in the afternoon.

Lily was struck with his exceedingly good looks again as she walked straight up to him and said "What do you want?" in the coolest tones imaginable.

"My identification card," he told her quietly, "You took it out of my cab this afternoon, and I'd like it."

His eyes swerved from her face as he spoke, and turning, Lily saw that Staley had come up behind her and was standing at her elbow, with his hands in his pockets and his lips pursed up under his little mustache.

"Please let me take care of this, Staley," she begged him, wondering if he had heard what Pat France had said. "Please do go back into the other room with Mother. This is my affair—really."

But Staley was stubborn. All his life he had got the things that he wanted by sticking to his point and refusing to budge. He refused to budge now.

He looked at the blue-eyed cab driver who topped him by a good three inches, and was exceptionally good-looking to boot. Then he looked at the girl who had promised to marry him just the night before. She had gone as white as the pale orchids he had brought her that afternoon and her fingers picked nervously at a frill on her black dress. There seemed to be more to this situation than just an unpaid taxi bill, as Staley saw it.

"How much do you owe this fellow, Lily?" he asked.

For a second Lily hesitated, not knowing what to say. And in that second she was lost. For Pat France answered the question.

OH, MY KIDNEYS!

There is probably no falsity harder to pry out of the minds of the majority of laymen than the idea that pain in the back means kidney disease. The numerous advertisements of patent medicines for kidney disease, reaching that practically every one may have a pain in the back at times, have capitalized this fact by associating back pain with the kidneys. Oh, my kidneys! pictures of men, women and children have literally poured in millions of shekels into their pockets.

But the fact that the unscrupulous takers got rich over the misrepresentations is the least to be concerned about. The thing to be concerned about is that many who did have kidney disease, and might have recovered under intelligent care, have actually died from their misplaced faith in the nostrums, and others who didn't have kidney disease might have contracted a kidney irritation from the drugs. Fortunately, the number of those who believe everything they read in advertisements is lessening markedly.

The technical name for the inflammation of the kidneys is Nephritis. (The termination itis means inflammation.) It is most often called Bright's disease, to honor a Dr. Bright of London, who, about 100 years ago was the first to describe the condition.

The work of the kidneys consists of filtering all of the blood and eliminating the larger share of the soluble waste products (mostly the protein waste). In this way they help to maintain the normal composition of the blood and body fluids. If one kidney has to be removed for any reason, the remaining one nobly comes to the rescue by enlarging and doing double work.

The kidney cells are most often acutely injured by bacterial poisons and the bacteria themselves. These often get into the blood from infected spots anywhere in the body (such as infected tonsils, teeth, and nasal sinuses) and from the acute infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, pneumonia, diphtheria, etc. The kidneys can also be injured by poisons such as lead and arsenic.

When to Suspect
Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair. Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolver. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's scalp—is an acid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks! —Adv.

LORECO 88

THE IDEAL
WINTER-TIME GAS

AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE

A SLOW start of your motor on a cold morning with ordinary gasoline necessitates overworking the starter with choke drawn out. The air valve in the carburetor is closed, diminishing the supply of oxygen. Thus raw gasoline is drawn into the combustion chambers—gasoline that does not begin to vaporize until subjected to considerable heat. Only part of it is burned by this sort of forced starting, and crankcase dilution results. Overcome all this by changing to "Loreco 88," the motor fuel with an initial boiling point of only 88 degrees. This means that "Loreco 88" begins to vaporize almost as soon as the motor starts revolving, ignites quickly and easily with the use of the choke reduced to the minimum; and thus your machine starts instantly in cold weather.

But, mind you, 88 degrees is only the initial boiling point. As the motor increases in heat the combustion of the dry vapor from "Loreco 88" is perfectly controlled so as to furnish all the power and mileage that has already made Loreco Gasoline famous. And all this at no increase in price. Winter-time driving becomes a pleasure when you adopt the use of "Loreco 88," the ideal winter-time motor fuel.

Loreco Motor Oil is made to withstand extremely low temperatures without congealing. It pours freely at zero. Hence it proves a master lubricant for winter-time driving, a worthy companion for "Loreco 88."
